Catching a Hen.

Mr. Cobleigh, of Nelson street, bought three hens, Saturday night, and put them under a box until he could build a coop. Sunday morning he saw one of them in the street, and bestowing a brief curse on the somebody who had overturned the box, and jeopardized his property, he started out after it, to drive it into the yard. It took fifteen minutes to convince him that that hen could not be driven into that yard, and then he attempted to catch it. Three times he rose up with his hands full of feathers, and his chin full of sand, but still that hen eluded him. Once he got it cornered, and thought sure he had it, but it flew straight up over his head, and flapped its wings in his face, and filled his eyes with dust. Oh, how mad Mr. Cobleigh was. It was Sunday morning. The bells were ringing, people were starting to church, and there he was in the street, with no coat or hat on, and with nothing but slippers on his feet, and every once in a while one of them would come off and fly through the air, and his naked foot would come in contact with the cruel gravel, before he could stop himself. Then he would have to hop back on one foot after that slipper, while the hen stood on the walk and elocuted, and the little Sunday school children stopped and laughed, and their parents reproved them, and laughed too. Finally the hen got away from him and started down street at a wonderful speed for a hen, and he started after, his face redder than ever, and every time he cleared a rod, he would stop and hop back two after one of those slippers. When he reached the corner of Essex street, he jumped out of both slippers at once, but instead of stopping to go back, he picked up a stick of wood, and kept on. Then as the hen dodged into a gateway he hurled the stick and broke the leg of a strange dog, which added its piercing "ki-yi" to the entertainment. But Cobleigh didn't stop. He tore into the yard after his property, in his bare feet, and chased the hen into a wood-pile and caught it just as the owner of the premises came out and wanted to know what Cobleigh was going to do with his hen, and what he meant, anyway, by getting drunk and kicking up such a hullabaloo in a peaceful neighborhood. Cobleigh first thought he would knock the man down with an axe, and what he could not eat of him bury under a barn; but the new comer succeeded in proving to Cobleigh that the hen was his, and then the miserable man burst into tears and limped back home, when he found the three hens under a box.—Danbury News.

Morals and Marriage in Vienna

A man's wealth is often estimated in Vienna by the number of mistresses he keeps, and the magnificence of their equipages, diamonds and dresses. There is no city in the world, not even Paris, that can rival the metropolis of Austria in sensuality and immorality, and in these respects there is a universality of sentiment that is quite remarkable. Ten years ago it was regarded as somewhat degrading to the female to live without marriage. Now, no woman is considered as having lowered herself much in the esteem of her neighbors unless she becomes a brazen courtesan. The laws regulating marriage are, I have ascertained, different from those of any other civilized nation. The church is forbidden to marry any man or woman without the consent of their parents. The parties proposing marriage must also have the written consent of the burgomaster and authorities of the place of their nativity, which will not be given unless they can prove that they have means sufficient to support a family, and will not become a charge upon the community. During the three years which every able-bodied man is required to serve in the army, he is not permitted to marry without he has also the consent of the secretary of war, or the general under whose command he is serving. Some of these laws can be evaded by going to some other section of the country, but the bars to marriage are so great, and the difficulties to be overcome so numerous, that they generally prefer to do without the ceremony, and start off in life just as so many of their neighbors and friends have done before them. There is a recent law which is intended to protect the female in these left-handed marriages. If she ascertains that her "man," by whom she has children, is about to contract marriage, she can enter protest and put a stop to the ceremony. It does not, however, prevent him from abandoning the mother of his children and familiarly taking up with his new love, just as he in days long past took up with her. The novels daily published here all recognize this new phase of life, and the most popular are those which represents their heroes and heroines as falling in love with and eloping with husbands and wives. Matrimony is ignored entirely in most of them. The marriage ceremony is daily growing more unpopular, and bids fair soon to become in Vienna, at least to be regarded, as one of the follies of a past generation.

What it costs to Boil a Friar.

The following singular bin for hanging and boiling a friar is extracted from an old document: "Account of the hanging and parboiling of Friar Stone, at Canterbury, in 1539.-Paid half a ton of timber to make a pair of gallows for to hang Friar Stone, 2s. 6d.; to a carpenter, for making the same gallows, and the dray, 1s. 4d.; to a laborer that digged the hole 3d. and other expenses of setting up the same, and carriage of the timber from Stablegate to the dungeon, 1s.; for a hurdle, 6d.; for a load of wood, and for a horse to draw him to the dungeon, 2s. 3d.; paid two men that set at the kettle and parboiled him, 1s.; to three men, that carried his quarters to the gates, and sat them up, 1s.; for halters to hang him, and Sandwich cord, and for screws, 1s.; for a woman that scoured the kettle 2d.; to him that did execution 3s. 8d.; total, 14s. 8d.

Commodore Vanderbilt's Keen Discernment.

From the Chicago Tribune.

One day, before Cornelius Vanderbilt obtained possession of the Hudson River Railway, he was traveling, it is said, from here to Albany; and, considering himself a privileged character, went into the baggage car to smoke. He had been enjoying his cigar but two or three minutes, when the conductor came along, and informed him politely that he must not smoke there. Vanderbilt said that it would not make any difference—that it was all right, &c.; but the conductor was of a different opinion, declaring that it was contrary to the rules of the road.

"You don't know me," said the smoker.—"My name is Vanderbilt. I am sometimes called Commodore. I generally do about as I please."

"I don't know nor do I care who you are, Mr. Vanderbilt. I intend to obey the rules. If you were ten times a Commodore I could not permit you to smoke here, and you must go elsewhere to finish your cigar."

The loyalty to duty displayed by the conductor pleased the ancient Cornelius, and he went out, though not before he had said to the conductor: "You are the right kind of man for your place. You don't respect persons. I think of buying this road, and if I do you can stay on it as long as you like."

Vanderbilt did buy the road and retained the conductor. He frequently remarked that that man could be trusted; that he was never mistaken in judging of character; and that he knew from the first that the conductor was sound.

The conductor stayed on the road for years, and in that time, as the story goes, stole himself into a pecuniary independence.

So much for Vanderbilt's knowledge of character. Evidently the conductor knew Vanderbilt better than Vanderbilt knew the conductor.

Gen. Pillsbury's Nerve.

In a sketch of the life of the late Gen. Amos Pillsbury the Albany Express relates the following interesting incident: "About that time (1826) his father was appointed Superintendent of the Connecticut State Prison, his son being the deputy; but in 1830, his father having resigned, Amos Pillsbury was tendered the position, although but twenty-five years of age. It was in this institution, and almost a quarter of a century ago, that a desperate fellow named Scott was confined for fifteen years. He was determined not to work, nor to submit to any of the rules, and shortly after entering the institution he nearly cut off his left hand to avoid doing any labor. But his wound was immediately attended to, and in less than one hour afterward he was engaged in turning a crank with his one hand. For this he threatened to murder the warden on the first opportunity, and in some way getting hold of a razor he sharpened it for the dread purpose.—Hearing of this, Mr. Pillsbury sent for him and commanded him to shave him. He eyed the man steadily, seated himself in the chair, and the operation began, the prisoner's hand trembling the while. When the shaving was finished the Superintendent said: 'I have been told you meant to murder me, but I thought I might trust you.' 'God bless you, Sir! you may,' replied the regenerated man, completely broken down. From that moment he became one of the best behaved criminals in the prison, was treated well, and remained on his good behavior until Mr. Pillsbury left in 1832. But when the new warden was appointed, Scott tried to escape, and murdered the keeper.—For this crime he was hanged the year following, in Hartford."

Novel at any Rate.

An old woman, whose necessities have appealed for many years to the benevolence of the members of the Freewill Baptist Church, of Olneyville, R. I., has recently had a unique effort made in her behalf. The Providence Journal thus bescribes it: "About two years ago it was suggested that, in order to provide for her wants, a bed-quilt of patchwork be put together, and that the alternate white squares be inscribed with the names of those who should contribute twenty-five cents or more to the object contemplated. The quilt of red and white, was cut and pieced by Mrs. Catherine Stone, and quilted by the Misses Irene and Flora Mathewson, and a committee of ladies immediately commenced canvassing for donations. Thus far some 900 contributors have evinced their interest, and the number will doubtless reach 1,000 ere the subscription is closed. When withdrawn from exhibition, the quilt is to be presented to Mrs. Lydia Cheney, and the receipts remaining unexpended turned over to the beneficiary. The number and character of the names inscribed are creditable to the zeal of the canvassers, the poet Whittier, Frederick Douglass, and several public men of this State being among the many whose subscriptions have sustained a worthy object, and whose names enhance the interest and augment the value of this unique medium of charitable endeavor."

Five hours and sixteen minutes, it is said, was once the time made by a fast train from Saratoga to New York. That time is reported to have been beaten the other day, the train a portion of the way making fifty miles an hour. Some nervous sporting men, the Sun says, got off at Catskill, saying they had enough of that kind of riding. Commodore Vanderbilt on a chest in the baggage car smoking a Havana, his heels digging into the chest as the train buzzed around a curve, is said to have offered a perfect picture of contentment.

Catching a Hen.

Mr. Cobleigh, of Nelson street, bought three hens, Saturday night, and put them under a box until he could build a coop. Sunday morning he saw one of them in the street, and bestowing a brief curse on the somebody who had overturned the box, and jeopardized his property, he started out after it, to drive it into the yard. It took fifteen minutes to convince him that that hen could not be driven into that yard, and then he attempted to catch it. Three times he rose up with his hands full of feathers, and his chin full of sand, but still that hen eluded him. Once he got it cornered, and thought sure he had it, but it flew straight up over his head, and flapped its wings in his face, and filled his eyes with dust. Oh, how mad Mr. Cobleigh was. It was Sunday morning. The bells were ringing, people were starting to church, and there he was in the street, with no coat or hat on, and with nothing but slippers on his feet, and every once in a while one of them would come off and fly through the air, and his naked foot would come in contact with the cruel gravel, before he could stop himself. Then he would have to hop back on one foot after that slipper, while the hen stood on the walk and elocuted, and the little Sunday school children stopped and laughed, and their parents reproved them, and laughed too. Finally the hen got away from him and started down street at a wonderful speed for a hen, and he started after, his face redder than ever, and every time he cleared a rod, he would stop and hop back two after one of those slippers. When he reached the corner of Essex street, he jumped out of both slippers at once, but instead of stopping to go back, he picked up a stick of wood, and kept on. Then as the hen dodged into a gateway he hurled the stick and broke the leg of a strange dog, which added its piercing "ki-yi" to the entertainment. But Cobleigh didn't stop. He tore into the yard after his property, in his bare feet, and chased the hen into a wood-pile and caught it just as the owner of the premises came out and wanted to know what Cobleigh was going to do with his hen, and what he meant, anyway, by getting drunk and kicking up such a hullabaloo in a peaceful neighborhood. Cobleigh first thought he would knock the man down with an axe, and what he could not eat of him bury under a barn; but the new comer succeeded in proving to Cobleigh that the hen was his, and then the miserable man burst into tears and limped back home, when he found the three hens under a box.—Danbury News.

Morals and Marriage in Vienna

A man's wealth is often estimated in Vienna by the number of mistresses he keeps, and the magnificence of their equipages, diamonds and dresses. There is no city in the world, not even Paris, that can rival the metropolis of Austria in sensuality and immorality, and in these respects there is a universality of sentiment that is quite remarkable. Ten years ago it was regarded as somewhat degrading to the female to live without marriage. Now, no woman is considered as having lowered herself much in the esteem of her neighbors unless she becomes a brazen courtesan. The laws regulating marriage are, I have ascertained, different from those of any other civilized nation. The church is forbidden to marry any man or woman without the consent of their parents. The parties proposing marriage must also have the written consent of the burgomaster and authorities of the place of their nativity, which will not be given unless they can prove that they have means sufficient to support a family, and will not become a charge upon the community. During the three years which every able-bodied man is required to serve in the army, he is not permitted to marry without he has also the consent of the secretary of war, or the general under whose command he is serving. Some of these laws can be evaded by going to some other section of the country, but the bars to marriage are so great, and the difficulties to be overcome so numerous, that they generally prefer to do without the ceremony, and start off in life just as so many of their neighbors and friends have done before them. There is a recent law which is intended to protect the female in these left-handed marriages. If she ascertains that her "man," by whom she has children, is about to contract marriage, she can enter protest and put a stop to the ceremony. It does not, however, prevent him from abandoning the mother of his children and familiarly taking up with his new love, just as he in days long past took up with her. The novels daily published here all recognize this new phase of life, and the most popular are those which represents their heroes and heroines as falling in love with and eloping with husbands and wives. Matrimony is ignored entirely in most of them. The marriage ceremony is daily growing more unpopular, and bids fair soon to become in Vienna, at least to be regarded, as one of the follies of a past generation.

What it costs to Boil a Friar.

The following singular bill for hanging and boiling a friar is extracted from an old document: "Account of the hanging and parboiling of Friar Stone, at Canterbury, in 1539.-Paid half a ton of timber to make a pair of gallows for to hang Friar Stone, 2s. 6d.; to a carpenter, for making the same gallows, and the dray, 1s. 4d.; to a laborer that digged the hole 3d. and other expenses of setting up the same, and carriage of the timber from Stablegate to the dungeon, 1s.; for a hurdle, 6d.; for a load of wood, and for a horse to draw him to the dungeon, 2s. 3d.; paid two men that set at the kettle and parboiled him, 1s.; to three men, that carried his quarters to the gates, and sat them up, 1s.; for halters to hang him, and Sandwich cord, and for screws, 1s.; for a woman that scoured the kettle 2d.; to him that did execution 3s. 8d.; total, 14s. 8d.

Commodore Vanderbilt's Keen Discernment.

From the Chicago Tribune.

One day, before Cornelius Vanderbilt obtained possession of the Hudson River Railway, he was traveling, it is said, from here to Albany; and, considering himself a privileged character, went into the baggage car to smoke. He had been enjoying his cigar but two or three minutes, when the conductor came along, and informed him politely that he must not smoke there. Vanderbilt said that it would not make any difference—that it was all right, &c.; but the conductor was of a different opinion, declaring that it was contrary to the rules of the road.

"You don't know me," said the smoker.—"My name is Vanderbilt. I am sometimes called Commodore. I generally do about as I please."

"I don't know nor do I care who you are, Mr. Vanderbilt. I intend to obey the rules. If you were ten times a Commodore I could not permit you to smoke here, and you must go elsewhere to finish your cigar."

The loyalty to duty displayed by the conductor pleased the ancient Cornelius, and he went out, though not before he had said to the conductor: "You are the right kind of man for your place. You don't respect persons. I think of buying this road, and if I do you can stay on it as long as you like."

Vanderbilt did buy the road and retained the conductor. He frequently remarked that that man could be trusted; that he was never mistaken in judging of character; and that he knew from the first that the conductor was sound.

The conductor stayed on the road for years, and in that time, as the story goes, stole himself into a pecuniary independence.

So much for Vanderbilt's knowledge of character. Evidently the conductor knew Vanderbilt better than Vanderbilt knew the conductor.

Gen. Pillsbury's Nerve.

In a sketch of the life of the late Gen. Amos Pillsbury the Albany Express relates the following interesting incident: "About that time (1826) his father was appointed Superintendent of the Connecticut State Prison, his son being the deputy; but in 1830, his father having resigned, Amos Pillsbury was tendered the position, although but twenty-five years of age. It was in this institution, and almost a quarter of a century ago, that a desperate fellow named Scott was confined for fifteen years. He was determined not to work, nor to submit to any of the rules, and shortly after entering the institution he nearly cut off his left hand to avoid doing any labor. But his wound was immediately attended to, and in less than one hour afterward he was engaged in turning a crank with his one hand. For this he threatened to murder the warden on the first opportunity, and in some way getting hold of a razor he sharpened it for the dread purpose.—Hearing of this, Mr. Pillsbury sent for him and commanded him to shave him. He eyed the man steadily, seated himself in the chair, and the operation began, the prisoner's hand trembling the while. When the shaving was finished the Superintendent said: 'I have been told you meant to murder me, but I thought I might trust you.' 'God bless you, Sir! you may,' replied the regenerated man, completely broken down. From that moment he became one of the best behaved criminals in the prison, was treated well, and remained on his good behavior until Mr. Pillsbury left in 1832. But when the new warden was appointed, Scott tried to escape, and murdered the keeper.—For this crime he was hanged the year following, in Hartford."

Novel at any Rate.

An old woman, whose necessities have appealed for many years to the benevolence of the members of the Freewill Baptist Church, of Olneyville, R. I., has recently had a unique effort made in her behalf. The Providence Journal thus describes it: "About two years ago it was suggested that, in order to provide for her wants, a bed-quilt of patchwork be put together, and that the alternate white squares be inscribed with the names of those who should contribute twenty-five cents or more to the object contemplated. The quilt of red and white, was cut and pieced by Mrs. Catherine Stone, and quilted by the Misses Irene and Flora Mathewson, and a committee of ladies immediately commenced canvassing for donations. Thus far some 900 contributors have evinced their interest, and the number will doubtless reach 1,000 ere the subscription is closed. When withdrawn from exhibition, the quilt is to be presented to Mrs. Lydia Cheney, and the receipts remaining unexpended turned over to the beneficiary. The number and character of the names inscribed are creditable to the zeal of the canvassers, the poet Whittier, Frederick Douglass, and several public men of this State being among the many whose subscriptions have sustained a worthy object, and whose names enhance the interest and augment the value of this unique medium of charitable endeavor."

Five hours and sixteen minutes, it is said, was once the time made by a fast train from Saratoga to New York. That time is reported to have been beaten the other day, the train a portion of the way making fifty miles an honr. Some nervous sporting men, the Sun says, got off at Catskill, saying they had enough of that kind of riding. Commodore Vanderbilt on a chest in the baggage car smoking a Havana, his heels digging into the chest as the train buzzed around a curve, is said to have offered a perfect picture of contentment.

"I use the 'New American Cyclopaedia' every day, generally many times a day. I think it the best work of the kind in existence. It is singularly well suited to families. The Daily Freeman.

Kingston, Saturday Morning, August 2.

That medium up in Vermont who is finishing Charles Dickens' "Edwin Drood," still "continues to persevere." He has written a preface for his book, in which he says:

"During the progress of this work, as with all others on which I was engaged during my earth-life, I have felt a great desire to know the comments which would be bestowed upon it by its readers, and so have been glad when the last line was written, that I could read and bear the different opinions which were to determine its success."

We have great faith in the medium, and doubt not he is writing by the inspiration of "Boz." We came to this conclusion by trying to solve and having at last to give up the conundrum—"if he isn't writing as such a medium, who did help him." Still with all the confidence such a conclusion gives us in him, we find the preface strikingly different from the ordinary style of the author of David Copperfield and Pickwick Papers. Dickens was too much of a genius to be hurrying up the printers to get his book out in order that the echoes from critics might reach his ear. Nor has he been in the habit, as he says further on in his preface, of being pained at the ridicule with which the continuation of the work has been greeted. Ridicule of the real Charles Dickens as a writer would be a very new thing; he would be not only pained, but absolutely shocked. A great many people have laughed very heartily with Charles Dickens, but none at him. He inspired laughter, not provoked it.

That is Just It.

Prof. Huxley in his address on Administrative Nihilism, says that it is not to be lamented that society should do its utmost to help capacity to rise from the lower strata to the higher, but it is to be lamented that we "have no machinery by which to facilitate the descent of incapacity from the higher strata to the lower." That is it exactly. We need such a machine in this country and county. Should the eminent scientist be able to suggest a model for one we would furnish the raw material for the engine itself, and then provide work for it during ten years to come. The "strata" must be better balanced. Voting 'em out don't do it thoroughly. Give us a mechanical automaton.

Ante-Mortem Reflections.

The Owego Times indulges in some very funeral strains about its unburied dead. It does not mourn for the "dead who are already dead," but for "the living who are yet alive." To be plain, the Times is righteously mad about the sleepiness and laziness of its business men. It declares with moving pathos and striking metaphor that "the capitalists of Owego hug their hoarded treasures as a dog hugs a boiled bone." "Business is awful dull terribly dull," is the lament of the shop-keepers of Owego. "We'll tell you why, oh ye Rip Van Winkles of an ancient and decaying trade!" shouts the clarion voice of the Times. "It's all because you are without enterprise. You allow villages and cities all around you to grow rich and do business at your expense. That's what ails trade." Elmira, Binghamton, Waverly and other towns erect factories, and Owego is too lazy and selfish to do it. So Owego imports more than it exports. It does not, cannot, give equivalents in trade for what it must buy and it follows that money gets tight and local trade dull. Kingston is not quite so badly off as our neighbor, but a timely word about the need of manufactories here, and the running of them by steam power generated from the creek water, is far from being nonsense. Let us keep clear of the graveyards with the dead above ground. Better to have things moving briskly and everybody singing "O-we-go."

Brown Stout.

We like the Queen of England and we like our friend Theodore Tilton, of the Golden Age. We do not here confess to liking brown-stout; but we do confess to a liking to the way in which Victoria drank it as a part of her lunch at Windsor when she officially received the Shah of Persia. She sat in her carriage under the shade looking at the glitter of military evolutions until the stomach demanded its allowance. Even queens are subject to hunger, which wouldn't help other people much, were it not that occasionally, as in this instance, they show a little common sense about satisfying it. Feeling hungry then, this royal woman turned to her faithful lunchman and said, "Mr. Brown, now bring on the lunch!" It was done. Then the Queen spread a napkin across her matronly knee and partook of beef-sandwiches and brown-stout which the stout Brown had brought. This too right before the workingmen and workingwomen of Albion. How contrary to tradition, yet how splendidly sensible. Many a laboring man went home to his humble fare that night more contented with his plain portion of this world's eatables and drinkables, now that he had seen the greatest lady in the realm chew and swallow the same. That act on the part of Her Majesty was, as our friend Theodore observes, "the sacrament of the people." It, and others exhibiting the same spirit, will do more toward perpetuating the monarchy than a dozen standing armies backed by Gladstone and a conservative parliament. The English throne built upon beef-sandwiches and strengthened by brown stout is a more enduring thing than the same structure defended by bayonets and washed with French blood. Let H. B. H. the Prince of Wales take due notice thereof and govern himself accordingly.

Enchanted Days.

August is the natural Sunday of the year. Nature is now doing her best to make us disrelish everything that smacks of business. All the world is drowsy. Nameless insects fill the lifeless air with a monotonous and stupefying hum and buzz. Birds have abandoned the effort to sing, unless that sort of sickly chirp they utter in early morning may be called singing. These days are dog-days; yet even the dogs are tired of them. Now and then a querulous yelp is the only sign of satisfaction they give. The life-giving principle, the ozone, has departed from the air we breathe. It is as though there were some distant tournament with a queen presiding, beautiful as the Serpent of old Nile, and that, "but for very vacancy the winds had gone to gaze on Cleopatra too and left a gap in nature."—Practical people who insist upon stimulating thought at such a time as this should be quietly but instantly imprisoned. Organ-grinders should be tolerated just so long as they grind out pathetic airs from Norma or soothe us with the "Last Rose of Summer." Letter-writing should be imperatively prohibited; dunning letters in particular. They are mean reading even when they run against the buffer of our good spirits, but now! The author of such a letter now should be classed with those horrible malefactors who plant infernal machines, cans of nitro-glycerine and so on, under ships and in highways. Truth itself is probably not so binding upon us in August as it is in April or December. A man should not be expected to keep his promises in these enchanted days. It ought, in fact, to be regarded as a high crime and misdemeanor for anybody to extract any kind of promise from anybody else. The expression of opinion deserves to be looked upon as an offence against the right of quiescence. The telegraph wires should be obstructed temporarily. We don't want to be bothered hearing about fires, murders, revolutions and sudden deaths. Politics should be remanded to purgatory. Anybody who makes a speech, trots a horse, suggests a new idea, rows a boat in such a way as to attract attention, offers to bet on any contingent event, writes a sensible editorial for a paper, fights an aggressor when he could more easily roll out of his way, or does or says any exciting things, should by common consent be hanged on the first of September, without trial by jury and without benefit of clergy.—All pic-nics, with bands of music, flags, chattering children and screaming young ladies who are afraid of bugs, ought to be ruled out altogether. Those lunatics who have gone to Saratoga, Long Branch, Newport and elsewhere should not be allowed to come back this month, while any other fools who want to go but have not gone yet should be made to lie on a bed of sponges saturated with chloroform.

This reading about the stewing and worrying of other people keeps us all in hot water. Shut up the banks, and make it an indictable offence for any man to offer goods for sale that are not a necessary part of daily existence.—If these hints could be made practical we should be the better for it in about four weeks from the date hereof.

The lilies hang their pure bells inverted over the breasts of glassy lakes. The flood-tide of summer pauses a little before it ebbs forever away. The vagrant bee, idly drooning in the ambient air, rests an instant on some old tombstone, wondering what the quaint carvings mean. This sticky, nasty, fussy, slavish habit of working always and against nature—working to pay the penalty when God's punctual collectors call again, what a humbug it is. Lie on your back in some cool spot and watch the drifting cumuli above you. Through a rift between you may catch a glimpse of something that will help to labor when the enchanted days are done and Memory rouses from her summer trance.

CURRENT TOPICS.

—The back-pay restorers, in most cases, appear to be wealthy Congressmen.

—To assure a profitable season at Saratoga and similar resorts, travelling will have to be lively this month.

—Neither the Mayor nor an Alderman could be found in New York yesterday. It must be as bad as it is reported—dull there just now.

—The New York Times rightly holds that to secure benefit from a summer vacation an entire change of air must be sought. The claims of the mountain and the sea-shore are to be weighed in deciding where to go.

—Why will country exchanges keep swallowing an incredulous story, started by that "sensational" paper, the New York Sun. A. T. Stewart is not worth over one-fifth of the vast sum alleged.

—The politicians are working themselves into a sweltering muddle about the situation in Ohio. Let even that so called scurvy set be more moderate awhile and leave Ohio to attend to its own political affairs, if she chooses, at least while the dog-star reigns.

—A story is told of a fireman on the United States steamer Nipsic, now at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, who has been chained to a ball on its deck since May 8th last, without changing his pants during that time. He deserted at Key West for which he was sentenced to state prison, but the order lingers at Washington. What criminality of all kinds is tolerated by our present head of Naval affairs.

—The last hue and cry against the "heathen Chinee," coming from the coast of the Pacific, is his liability to breed leprosy. Medical experts say this is a groundless fear, and even if so that the complaint is not of a contagious nature. Something else will have to be started up against the almond-eyed, pig-tailed, rat-eater, opium-smoker, and trick card-player.

—The summer church closing discussion pro and con, seems about ended in city dailies. Its result has most likely left advocates and opponents as they were before in sentiment. The latter class most usually seem to be those who decry all reasonable recreation and follow out one idea, whether with snow on their boots or a linen coat on their backs. The chronic stay-at-homes want to make their plan general.

—The formal opening of the New Jersey section of the Jersey City & Albany Railroad took place Thursday. The track is graded to a point near Haverstraw. The entire work is to be pushed forward to the earliest possible completion along the west shore of the Hudson to Albany. The route is from Jersey City through Hudson and Bergen counties, in New Jersey, and Rockland county, in the state of New York, via Rockland Lake and Haverstraw, and thence along the Hudson River to Albany.

—We wonder whether this year will "play out" or increase the contract through-trip plan of European journeys? The return of some of these expeditions to our shores will smoke out most likely many doleful experiences, if not smacking of humor a la Mark Twain reporting his Quaker City party's wanderings, but whether to prevent others from repeating such machine tours remains to be seen.

—Professor Wise, the noted æronaut who is to undertake the experiment of reaching Europe in a balloon, at last writes to the New York Graphic that whether he reaches that continent or not he expects to prove the motions of both currents of air, at a certain altitude, moving eastwardly at an average rate of forty-five to fifty miles an hour faster than the earth's velocity. An experience of thirty years, he claims, convinces him of the truth of the supposition.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—The Tigress, in search for the Polaris, saild on the 30th ult. from St. John's, N. F., for Disco, Greenland.

—The French Government is about to bring in a bill to provide for the building of eight railways.

—A male child a few days old was found in the water at pier 4 North River, New York, Thursday.

—Thirty lady tax-payers and property-holders of San Francisco have formed a league, and resolved to pay no taxes until they shall be recognized as citizens.

—Senator Summer arrived in Boston on Wednesday, fully restored to health, and expects to gain further strength by cessation from all mental labor until next Winter.

—There have been 2,110 immigrants from Elseass and Lorraine registered at Castle Garden during the last six months. Of French immigrants there have been 1,241.—French peasant emigration to this country was comparatively unknown before their war with Germany.

—A new time-table will be issued on the Hudson River Railroad on Monday next. The alterations consist merely in the change of the early train from Albany, which will run through hereafter in four hours, reaching New York at a quarter-past ten instead of half-past eleven, A. M.

—Out of the draft of forty-nine men that left Sing Sing Prison on Monday night fifteen returned under the charge of the keepers Thursday. Owing to the crowded condition of Auburn the authorities refused to receive all who were not sentenced during the present year. It is said that a draft of fifteen of the convicts at Sing Sing sentenced this year will be made as soon as orders are received from the inspectors, at the head of which list will be "Mr. John Wesley Allen."

—Brooklyn abounds in eccentric people. One of them wants to take Kate Stoddard's place. She thinks Kate did a good thing in sending Goodrich to his own place and would not object to a little public martyrdom served up in an agreeable way. She does not inform the public whether she attends Plymouth Church. The man who wishes himself in Goodrich's place has not put in an appearance. Perhaps he is waiting for cool weather.

The Prefect of Department of Upper Loire has forbidden the sale in the streets of the Radical journal Le Peuple Souverain.

The report that Count De Paris had gone to Frolsdorff to visit Count De Chambord is pronounced false.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Duke of Edinburgh's Marriage.

LONDON, August 1.—The bill granting £25,000 per annum to the Duke of Edinburgh on the occasion of his marriage came up to-day for a third reading. Sir Charles Dilke made a long speech against the grant. Mr. Gladstone replied with bitterness, characterizing the persistent opposition to the bill as indecent.—Mr. Muntze, Member for Birmingham, protested against the epithet "indecent," and Mr. Gladstone withdrew the offensive expression. Mr. Newdegate asked if the marriage would be solemnized according to the forms of the church of England. Mr. Gladstone distinctly and absolutely declined to answer the question. Mr. Anderson, Member for Glasgow, moved an amendment providing that in the event of the Duke of Edinburgh succeeding to the Grand Duchy of Saxe Coburg the annuity to cease. After further debate the amendment was withdrawn and the bill passed in committee.

The election of Member of Parliament for Greenwich takes place to-morrow, the contest is close and excited, and there has been some rioting.

CARLISTS AT WORK IN CUBA.

KEY WEST, August 1.—Mail advices from Havana of the 29th ult. contain the following: The government has obtained possession of important documents revealing clandestine labors of the Carlists in this province and criminating Quijaro, counsel for the Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company and legal agent for several wealthy merchants of Havana. Other persons are implicated and are under the surveillance of the courts. The arrest of some prominent men is rumored. In searching the house of Quijaro $500,000 in gold was found, which it is said was collected here to be sent to England to further the cause of the Carlists.

The Tribuno calls upon the government to embargo the property of the Carlist conspirators in Havana.

The commissioner sent by the Captain General to the insurgents has returned after an interview with Cespedes, who firmly refused to enter into any negotiations. Severe engagements have taken place lately near Puerto Principe with the insurgents.

The town of Yaregal was attacked recently by a Cuban force of three hundred men. After a fight of several hours they were repulsed. They set fire to several houses. Guzman, a prominent Cuban, who was made Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish army for saving Valmaseda from being captured by the insurgents at one time, was lately killed in battle.

SPAIN.

Insurgent and Republican Movements.

MADRID, August 1.—The Insurgent fleet has sailed from Almeria. There is great rejoicing over its departure. It is believed that the fleet will next visit Alcoante and the garrison and citizens are preparing for defence. The arsenal in Cadiz still holds out for the government.

The Majorera tobacco factory, the last refuge of the insurgents in Seville, has been captured by the troops, and a large number of prisoners taken, among whom are several foreigners, members of International society. The Carlist force, 10,000 strong attacked Portugualite seven miles from Bilboa this morning The garrison made a vigerous and successful defence. The Carlists were defeated with heavy losses and were driven over Galindan river. The town of Alhama, thirteen miles from Mercia has proclaimed its independence. A junta has been organized, the first act of which was to levy a contribution of $25,000 on the inhabitants.

The report that the frigate Villa de Madrid had joined the insurgents, is officially contradicted. The insurgent fleet which left the harbor of Almeria was last seen heading for Malaga. Two other frigates in the hands of the rebels are at Malaga trying to raise contributions from citizens. Four of the German men-of-war are in the harbor watching them.

MADRID, August 1.—An Insurgent frigate entered the harbor of Malaga to-day, closely followed by a German man-of-war. She shortly afterwards sailed, going eastward and pursued again by the German vessel. It is supposed that she will be captured by the latter. The Insurgents of Grenada offer to surrender.

One baggage car and one passenger car were totally smashed, and another passenger car was partly broken up. No one was hurt.

STILL ANOTHER R. R. ACCIDENT.

COLLISION ON HUDSON RIVER R. R.

A Fast Saratoga Train Smashed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, August 1.—A freight train bound south on the Hudson River Railroad, in attempting to cross to the third track between Tarrytown and Irvington, at about 10 o'clock this forenoon, mounted the rail and ran off the track. Just then the northward bound Saratoga train, which left New York at 9 A. M., came along, when the engine of the freight train struck the baggage car and disabled or wrecked every car in the train. A brakeman on the freight train was fatally injured and several of the passengers seriously wounded. Several other passengers were slightly injured.

LATER.

Later reports from the scene of the accident on the Hudson River Railroad to-day say Vosburgh, the baggageman on the Saratoga train, was badly hurt; also Mr. Warren and wife of New York. They are both at Tarrytown and both will recover. All the rest of the injured are able to proceed. The brakeman on the freight train will die.

LATEST.

A Po'keepsie despatch, from Superintendent Toucey, to-night says only two passengers were obliged to stop at Tarrytown from the Saratoga train accident: Mr. Ira D. Warren and wife, of New York, and the doctor says they are not seriously injured. Richard Finley, extra freight train brakeman, who resides in Thirty-second street, New York, is more seriously injured than any one else. One of his legs is broken, and his head is terribly swollen. Several were cut by flying glass. Among them Myers Beach and a man named McGowan. Baggage-master Peter Vosburgh was badly bruised, but will recover. No one was killed.

—The London Swimming Club has instituted, this year, a series of swimming contests in the Serpentine, and offers to teach swimming gratis to "any gentleman" who will send in his name. The club also gives instruction in the theory and practice of resuscitation from drowning. Members, for a trifling fee, "stay under" till they are unconscious and then subject themselves to novitiate resuscitators. If the latter are successful in restoring the specimen, they receive diplomas certifying the fact; if not successful, they are discharged.

A Difference.

Stewart and Vanderbilt are similar in the point of pecuniary success, and each has won distinction in the art of making money, but while they are alike in this respect their specialties are of an entirely different character. How odd would Commodore Vanderbilt appear as a dry goods jobber? His taste has always been transportation. He has avoided holding real estate, while Stewart has purchased all he could pay for. When the depot was moved up town the Commodore sold all the property this vacated at auction. He will not bother with such stupid things as houses when he can handle locomotives and railway trains. I have never heard of the Commodore's dabbling in bank stock, while, on the other hand, I have never heard Stewart's name connected with railroads, except in respect to his Hempstead lands. This shows how men are led into diverse operations of equal magnitude by their early habits and tastes. Another difference may be found in intellectual culture. Stewart's mind was disciplined by early education and by his brief experience as a teacher. He has retained through life a relish for these things, and hence can carry on a conversation with men of learning.—Vanderbilt, on the other hand, is utterly illiterate. His education was limited, and he has been all his days thoroughly absorbed by business, to the exclusion of mental culture. In such matters as history or literature he is as destitute as can be imagined. Of science he knows nothing, except as it has a bearing on the business of transportation. Science with him is to run a locomotive, and his highest attainment is a fast train. All this, no doubt, is owing to early habits. "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." Had Vanderbilt been trained to a profession he would, no doubt, have excelled in it, "but knowledge to his mind her ample page, rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll." I regret to think that Vanderbilt's splendid talents should not have reflected a higher benefit on society than even successful railway management. If he does not in his will confer some substantial benefit on society I should almost look upon his genius as being thrown away. At the very least he should leave an endowment in favor of worn out railway men. The pay of their class is insufficient to enable them to lay up any provision against sickness and old age, and hence a fund should be devoted to this purpose. This would be a better monument than the huge and clumsy figures on the freight depot in this city, which cost the Commodore, as it is said, a half million.—N. Y. Correspondent Troy Times.

There is plainly no diminution in the use of postal cards, as the average daily shipments now reach nearly a million. On Monday last they exceeded that figure. In Austria the cards are equally popular. The Vienna business men make liberal use of them, and the facilities for prompt delivery in various sections of the city are very complete. But while the cards are recognized as a decided public convenience in this country and on the continent of Europe, the English people have as yet failed to appreciate their advantages, though their eventual adoption by the general public is probably but a question of time.—Their popularity was destroyed in the beginning by the fact that they were made the medium of a good deal of petty malice. The tailors took this mode of dunning their customers, and it was employed for purposes of intimidation in many a way that narrowly escaped liability to the statute against levying blackmail. Recently, however, a young man who was insulted by an insolent dun, and brought a suit for libel, has recovered heavy damages, the Judge holding in general terms that no communication, which would injure the standing of any person, in whatsoever manner, was eligible for open correspondence. This decision put a stop to the abuses of which the postal card is in its very nature peculiarly susceptible, and there is now some hope that the postal card will gradually recover from the stigma which has been placed upon it.

Leap for Liberty.

A Pennsylvania Deputy Sheriff, who had a prisoner in his charge in a railroad car, the other day, left him for a moment, and as soon as his back was turned the prisoner deliberately jumped, feet foremost through the open window of the car. He alighted in a soft morass, and was not hurt, for he immediately picked himself up and broke for the woods at a gait quite rapid. The officer noticed his sudden exit, and without a moment's hesitation jumped after him. He brought up in the same morass, but his efforts to recapture the fugitive were somewhat impeded by the fact that he pitched headlong into the mud and stuck there. He so struck that his arms were imbedded nearly up to the shoulders in the tenacious mire, and it was therefore an impossibility for him to bring his pistol into requisition. The prisoner took advantage of this singular combination of circumstances in his favor by making a fresh spurt, and soon disappeared in the distance. The train was stopped, and the Deputy Sheriff was fished out of the mud, but he declined to enter upon further pursuit of the prisoner, and continued on his homeward route the muddiest and maddest man lately seen in the State.

A Youth Tortured Most Inhumanely by Two Ruffians.

A horrible outrage was perpetrated in Linn township, Warren county, Iowa, on a boy fourteen years of age, by two men named Hart and McKissick. The boy, who was living at McKissick's, was accused by them of robbing the two men who slept in the room with him. The boy denied his guilt and threats failed to extort a confession. The two brutes whipped him unmercifully, again and again, until Monday night, when the boy was taken to a well, some ten feet deep, with about five feet of water in it, and with a rope round his neck he was lowered repeatedly, head foremost, into the water until nearly drowned. The same night he was taken up stairs, in McKissick's house by McKissick and Hart, and there laid on his face on the floor, his feet bound with a rope passed over the rafters, so as to draw his feet some twenty inches from the floor. His hands were bound behind him and drawn up in the same way to about the same elevation, and his head lashed to a bed post by a cord from his neck. In this condition he was left until ten o'clock Tuesday, when some neighbors discovered and released him from his painful position, more dead than alive. The boy had neither food nor water, save when ducked in the well, from Sunday evening until Tuesday noon. McKissick and Hart, who are both men of property, were arrested yesterday, and held to answer for the assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury, and were also served with notice in a civil suit for $5,000 damages.

The great coal monopoly is with five companies. The total production of anthracite coal is about two millions of tons a month. These five companies, who own all the desirable and productive coal regions, propose to keep down the supply as the means of keeping up the price. The Pennsylvania Company last year, though doing a small business, paid a twenty per cent. cash dividend on $4,000,000 and interest on a funded and floating debt of a million. The Delaware & Hudson Canal Company paid a cash dividend of ten per cent. on $15,000,000 of capital, interest on $13,000,000 of debt, and reported no floating debt. The Delawre, Lackawanna and Western Railroad paid 10 per cent. in cash on $20,000,000 capital, and interest on $9,000,000 of debt. The Reading Railroad paid 10 per cent. cash dividend on $34,000,000 of stock, and interest on $29,000,000 of debt, drawing only about $600,000 from a reserve fund, the profits of previous years. The Lehigh Valley Railroad paid 10 per cent. on $21,000,000 of stock, and interest on $10,000,000 of debt. The New Jersey Central, lessee of the Schuylkill and Susquehanna Road, is also believed to have made its ten per cent. These statistics are from the Tribune. They show the poverty of the coal companies!

Asthma in the Oil Regions.

The Titusville Herald says that asthma is of very rare occurrence in the oil regions, and that the cause of such exemption is found in the fact that the atmosphere there is strongly impregnated with the vapors of petroleum, which acts almost as a specific for the relief of asthma, and at the same time as a preventive of consumption. It adds: "Let any one who is afflicted with asthma, and feels a particular difficult spell of breathing coming on, go in the vicinity of a producing well, where petroleum vapor hovers in the neighborhood, and he will find great relief, and continued presence in such a neighborhood will be the best means of a permanent cure. We look forward to the time when physicians all over the United States will recommend to their asthmatic patients a journey to the oil regions, and we hope some suitable preparation will be made for their entertainment and diversion. The prospect of an infirmary for such subjects has been seriously discussed by many of our citizens, but has not yet taken definite shape."

Kingston, Saturday Morning, August 2.

That medium up in Vermont who is finishing Charles Dickens' "Edwin Drood," still "continues to persevere." He has written a preface for his book, in which he says:

"During the progress of this work, as with all others on which I was engaged during my earth-life, I have felt a great desire to know the comments which would be bestowed upon it by its readers, and so have been glad when the last line was written, that I could read and bear the different opinions which were to determine its success."

We have great faith in the medium, and doubt not he is writing by the inspiration of "Boz." We came to this conclusion by trying to solve and having at last to give up the conundrum—"if he isn't writing as such a medium, who did help him." Still with all the confidence such a conclusion gives us in him, we find the preface strikingly different from the ordinary style of the author of David Copperfield and Pickwick Papers. Dickens was too much of a genius to be hurrying up the printers to get his book out in order that the echoes from critics might reach his ear. Nor has he been in the habit, as he says further on in his preface, of being pained at the ridicule with which the continuation of the work has been greeted. Ridicule of the real Charles Dickens as a writer would be a very new thing; he would be not only pained, but absolutely shocked. A great many people have laughed very heartily with Charles Dickens, but none at him. He inspired laughter, not provoked it.

That is Just It.

Prof. Huxley in his address on Administrative Nihilism, says that it is not to be lamented that society should do its utmost to help capacity to rise from the lower strata to the higher, but it is to be lamented that we "have no machinery by which to facilitate the descent of incapacity from the higher strata to the lower." That is it exactly. We need such a machine in this country and county. Should the eminent scientist be able to suggest a model for one we would furnish the raw material for the engine itself, and then provide work for it during ten years to come. The "strata" must be better balanced. Voting 'em out don't do it thoroughly. Give us a mechanical automaton.

Ante-Mortem Reflections.

The Owego Times indulges in some very funeral strains about its unburied dead. It does not mourn for the "dead who are already dead," but for "the living who are yet alive." To be plain, the Times is righteously mad about the sleepiness and laziness of its business men. It declares with moving pathos and striking metaphor that "the capitalists of Owego hug their hoarded treasures as a dog hugs a boiled bone." "Business is awful dull terribly dull," is the lament of the shop-keepers of Owego. "We'll tell you why, oh ye Rip Van Winkles of an ancient and decaying trade!" shouts the clarion voice of the Times. "It's all because you are without enterprise. You allow villages and cities all around you to grow rich and do business at your expense. That's what ails trade." Elmira, Binghamton, Waverly and other towns erect factories, and Owego is too lazy and selfish to do it. So Owego imports more than it exports. It does not, cannot, give equivalents in trade for what it must buy and it follows that money gets tight and local trade dull. Kingston is not quite so badly off as our neighbor, but a timely word about the need of manufactories here, and the running of them by steam power generated from the creek water, is far from being nonsense. Let us keep clear of the graveyards with the dead above ground. Better to have things moving briskly and everybody singing "O-we-go."

Brown Stout.

We like the Queen of England and we like our friend Theodore Tilton, of the Golden Age. We do not here confess to liking brown-stout; but we do confess to a liking to the way in which Victoria drank it as a part of her lunch at Windsor when she officially received the Shah of Persia. She sat in her carriage under the shade looking at the glitter of military evolutions until the stomach demanded its allowance. Even queens are subject to hunger, which wouldn't help other people much, were it not that occasionally, as in this instance, they show a little common sense about satisfying it. Feeling hungry then, this royal woman turned to her faithful lunchman and said, "Mr. Brown, now bring on the lunch!" It was done. Then the Queen spread a napkin across her matronly knee and partook of beef-sandwiches and brown-stout which the stout Brown had brought. This too right before the workingmen and workingwomen of Albion. How contrary to tradition, yet how splendidly sensible. Many a laboring man went home to his humble fare that night more contented with his plain portion of this world's eatables and drinkables, now that he had seen the greatest lady in the realm chew and swallow the same. That act on the part of Her Majesty was, as our friend Theodore observes, "the sacrament of the people." It, and others exhibiting the same spirit, will do more toward perpetuating the monarchy than a dozen standing armies backed by Gladstone and a conservative parliament. The English throne built upon beef-sandwiches and strengthened by brown stout is a more enduring thing than the same structure defended by bayonets and washed with French blood. Let H. B. H. the Prince of Wales take due notice thereof and govern himself accordingly.

Enchanted Days.

August is the natural Sunday of the year. Nature is now doing her best to make us disrelish everything that smacks of business. All the world is drowsy. Nameless insects fill the lifeless air with a monotonous and stupefying hum and buzz. Birds have abandoned the effort to sing, unless that sort of sickly chirp they utter in early morning may be called singing. These days are dog-days; yet even the dogs are tired of them. Now and then a querulous yelp is the only sign of satisfaction they give. The life-giving principle, the ozone, has departed from the air we breathe. It is as though there were some distant tournament with a qdeen presiding, beautiful as the Serpent of old Nile, and that, "but for very vacancy the winds had gone to gaze on Cleopatra too and left a gap in nature."—Practical people who insist upon stimulating thought at such a time as this should be quietly but instantly imprisoned. Organ-grinders should be tolerated just so long as they grind out pathetic airs from Norma or soothe us with the "Last Rose of Summer." Letter-writing should be imperatively prohibited; dunning letters in particular. They are mean reading even when they run against the buffer of our good spirits, but now! The author of such a letter now should be classed with those horrible malefactors who plant infernal machines, cans of nitro-glycerine and so on, under ships and in highways. Truth itself is probably not so binding upon us in August as it is in April or December. A man should not be expected to keep his promises in these enchanted days. It ought, in fact, to be regarded as a high crime and misdemeanor for anybody to extract any kind of promise from anybody else. The expression of opinion deserves to be looked upon as an offence against the right of quiescence. The telegraph wires should be obstructed temporarily. We don't want to be bothered hearing about fires, murders, revolutions and sudden deaths. Politics should be remanded to purgatory. Anybody who makes a speech, trots a horse, suggests a new idea, rows a boat in such a way as to attact attention, offers to bet on any contingent event, writes a sensible editorial for a paper, fights an aggressor when he could more easily roll out of his way, or does or says any exciting things, should by common consent be hanged on the first of September, without trial by jury and without benefit of clergy.—All pic-nics, with bands of music, flags, chattering children and screaming young ladies who are afraid of bugs, ought to be ruled out altogether. Those lunatics who have gone to Saratoga, Long Branch, Newport and elsewhere should not be allowed to come back this month, while any other fools who want to go but have not gone yet should be made to lie on a bed of sponges saturated with chloroform.

This reading about the stewing and worrying of other people keeps us all in hot water. Shut up the banks, and make it an indictable offence for any man to offer goods for sale that are not a necessary part of daily existence.—If these hints could be made practical we should be the better for it in about four weeks from the date hereof.

The lilies hang their pure bells inverted over the breasts of glassy lakes. The flood-tide of summer pauses a little before it ebbs forever away. The vagrant bee, idly drooning in the ambient air, rests an instant on some old tombstone, wondering what the quaint carvings mean. This sticky, nasty, fussy, slavish habit of working always and against nature—working to pay the penalty when God's punctual collectors call again, what a humbug it is. Lie on your back in some cool spot and watch the drifting cumuli above you. Through a rift between you may catch a glimpse of something that will help to labor when the enchanted days are done and Memory rouses from her summer trance.

CURRENT TOPICS.

—The back-pay restorers, in most cases, appear to be wealthy Congressmen.

—To assure a profitable season at Saratoga and similar resorts, travelling will have to be lively this month.

—Neither the Mayor nor an Alderman could be found in New York yesterday. It must be as bad as it is reported—dull there just now.

—The New York Times rightly holds that to secure benefit from a summer vacation an entire change of air must be sought. The claims of the mountain and the sea-shore are to be weighed in deciding where to go.

—Why will country exchanges keep swallowing an incredulous story, started by that "sensational" paper, the New York Sun. A. T. Stewart is not worth over one-fifth of the vast sum alleged.

—The politicians are working themselves into a sweltering muddle about the situation in Ohio. Let even that so called scurvy set be more moderate awhile and leave Ohio to attend to its own political affairs, if she chooses, at least while the dog-star reigns.

—A story is told of a fireman on the United States steamer Nipsic, now at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, who has been chained to a ball on its deck since May 8th last, without changing his pants during that time. He deserted at Key West for which he was sentenced to state prison, but the order lingers at Washington. What criminality of all kinds is tolerated by our present head of Naval affairs.

—The last hue and cry against the "heathen Chinee," coming from the coast of the Pacific, is his liability to breed leprosy. Medical experts say this is a groundless fear, and even if so that the complaint is not of a contagious nature. Something else will have to be started up against the almond-eyed, pig-tail'd, rat-eater, opium-smoker, and trick card-player.

—The summer church closing discussion pro and con, seems about ended in city dailies. Its result has most likely left advocates and opponents as they were before in sentiment. The latter class most usually seem to be those who decry all reasonable recreation and follow out one idea, whether with snow on their boots or a linen coat on their backs. The chronic stay-at-homes want to make their plan general.

—The formal opening of the New Jersey section of the Jersey City & Albany Railroad took place Thursday. The track is graded to a point near Haverstraw. The entire work is to be pushed forward to the earliest possible completion along the west shore of the Hudson to Albany. The route is from Jersey City through Hudson and Bergen counties, in New Jersey, and Rockland county, in the state of New York, via Rockland Lake and Haverstraw, and thence along the Hudson River to Albany.

—We wonder whether this year will "play out" or increase the contract through-trip plan of European journeys? The return of some of these expeditions to our shores will smoke out most likely many doleful experiences, if not smacking of humor a la Mark Twain reporting his Quaker City party's wanderings, but whether to prevent others from repeating such machine tours remains to be seen.

—Professor Wise, the noted æronaut who is to undertake the experiment of reaching Europe in a balloon, at last writes to the New York Graphic that whether he reaches that continent or not he expects to prove the motions of both currents of air, at a certain altitude, moving eastwardly at an average rate of forty-five to fifty miles an hour faster than the earth's velocity. An experience of thirty years, he claims, convinces him of the truth of the supposition.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—The Tigress, in search for the Polaris, saild on the 30th ult. from St. John's, N. F., for Disco, Greenland.

—The French Government is about to bring in a bill to provide for the building of eight railways.

—A male child a few days old was found in the water at pier 4 North River, New York, Thursday.

—Thirty lady tax-payers and property-holders of San Francisco have formed a league, and resolved to pay no taxes until they shall be recognized as citizens.

—Senator Sumner arrived in Boston on Wednesday, fully restored to health, and expects to gain further strength by cessation from all mental labor until next Winter.

—There have been 2,110 immigrants from Elseass and Lorraine registered at Castle Garden during the last six months. Of French immigrants there have been 1,241.—French peasant emigration to this country was comparatively unknown before their war with Germany.

—A new time-table will be issued on the Hudson River Railroad on Monday next. The alterations consist merely in the change of the early train from Albany, which will run through hereafter in four hours, reaching New York at a quarter-past ten instead of half-past eleven, A. M.

—Out of the draft of forty-nine men that left Sing Sing Prison on Monday night fifteen returned under the charge of the keepers Thursday. Owing to the crowded condition of Auburn the authorities refused to receive all who were not sentenced during the present year. It is said that a draft of fifteen of the convicts at Sing Sing sentenced this year will be made as soon as orders are received from the inspectors, at the head of which list will be "Mr. John Wesley Allen."

—Brooklyn abounds in eccentric people. One of them wants to take Kate Stoddard's place. She thinks Kate did a good thing in sending Goodrich to his own place and would not object to a little public martyrdom served up in an agreeable way. She does not inform the public whether she attends Plymouth Church. The man who wishes himself in Goodrich's place has not put in an appearance. Perhaps he is waiting for cool weather.

The Duke of Edinburgh's Marriage.

LONDON, August 1.—The bill granting £25,000 per annum to the Duke of Edinburgh on the occasion of his marriage came up to-day for a third reading. Sir Charles Dilke made a long speech against the grant. Mr. Gladstone replied with bitterness, characterizing the persistent opposition to the bill as indecent.—Mr. Muntze, Member for Birmingham, protested against the epithet "indecent," and Mr. Gladstone withdrew the offensive expression. Mr. Newdegate asked if the marriage would be solemnized according to the forms of the church of England. Mr. Gladstone distinctly and absolutely declined to answer the question. Mr. Anderson, Member for Glasgow, moved an amendment providing that in the event of the Duke of Edinburgh succeeding to the Grand Duchy of Saxe Coburg the annuity to cease. After further debate the amendment was withdrawn and the bill passed in committee.

The election of Member of Parliament for Greenwich takes place to-morrow, the contest is close and excited, and there has been some rioting.

CARLISTS AT WORK IN CUBA.

KEY WEST, August 1.—Mail advices from Havana of the 29th ult. contain the following: The government has obtained possession of important documents revealing clandestine labors of the Carlists in this province and criminating Quijaro, counsel for the Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company and legal agent for several wealthy merchants of Havana. Other persons are implicated and are under the surveillance of the courts. The arrest of some prominent men is rumored. In searching the house of Quijaro $500,000 in gold was found, which it is said was collected here to be sent to England to further the cause of the Carlists.

The Carlist force, 10,000 strong attacked Portugualite seven miles from Bilboa this morning The garrison made a vigerous and successful defence. The Carlists were defeated with heavy losses and were driven over Galindan river. The town of Alhama, thirteen miles from Mercia has proclaimed its independence. A junta has been organized, the first act of which was to levy a contribution of $25,000 on the inhabitants.

The report that the frigate Villa de Madrid had joined the insurgents, is officially contradicted. The insurgent fleet which left the harbor of Almeria was last seen heading for Malaga. Two other frigates in the hands of the rebels are at Malaga trying to raise contributions from citizens. Four of the German men-of-war are in the harbor watching them.

MADRID, August 1.—An Insurgent frigate entered the harbor of Malaga to-day, closely followed by a German man-of-war. POUGHKEEPSIE, August 1.—A freight train bound south on the Hudson River Railroad, in attempting to cross to the third track between Tarrytown and Irvington, at about 10 o'clock this forenoon, mounted the rail and ran off the track. Just then the northward bound Saratoga train, which left New York at 9 A. M., came along, when the engine of the freight train struck the baggage car and disabled or wrecked every car in the train. A brakeman on the freight train was fatally injured and several of the passengers seriously wounded. Several other passengers were slightly injured.

If the latter are successful in restoring the specimen, they receive diplomas certifying the fact; if not successful, they are discharged.

A Difference.

Stewart and Vanderbilt are similar in the point of pecuniary success, and each has won distinction in the art of making money, but while they are alike in this respect their specialties are of an entirely different character. How odd would Commodore Vanderbilt appear as a dry goods jobber? His taste has always been transportation. He has avoided holding real estate, while Stewart has purchased all he could pay for. When the depot was moved up town the Commodore sold all the property this vacated at auction. He will not bother with such stupid things as houses when he can handle locomotives and railway trains. I have never heard of the Commodore's dabbling in bank stock, while, on the other hand, I have never heard Stewart's name connected with railroads, except in respect to his Hempstead lands. This shows how men are led into diverse operations of equal magnitude by their early habits and tastes. Another difference may be found in intellectual culture. Stewart's mind was disciplined by early education and by his brief experience as a teacher. He has retained through life a relish for these things, and hence can carry on a conversation with men of learning.—Vanderbilt, on the other hand, is utterly illiterate. His education was limited, and he has been all his days thoroughly absorbed by business, to the exclusion of mental culture. In such matters as history or literature he is as destitute as can be imagined. Of science he knows nothing, except as it has a bearing on the business of transportation. Science with him is to run a locomotive, and his highest attainment is a fast train. All this, no doubt, is owing to early habits. "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." Had Vanderbilt been trained to a profession he would, no doubt, have excelled in it, "but knowledge to his mind her ample page, rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll." I regret to think that Vanderbilt's splendid talents should not have reflected a higher benefit on society than even successful railway management. If he does not in his will confer some substantial benefit on society I should almost look upon his genius as being thrown away. At the very least he should leave an endowment in favor of worn out railway men. The pay of their class is insufficient to enable them to lay up any provision against sickness and old age, and hence a fund should be devoted to this purpose. This would be a better monument than the huge and clumsy figures on the freight depot in this city, which cost the Commodore, as it is said, a half million.—N. Y. Correspondent Troy Times.

There is plainly no diminution in the use of postal cards, as the average daily shipments now reach nearly a million. On Monday last they exceeded that figure. In Austria the cards are equally popular, The Vienna business men make liberal use of them, and the facilities for prompt delivery in various sections of the city are very complete. But while the cards are recognized as a decided public convenience in this country and on the continent of Europe, the English people have as yet failed to appreciate their advantages, though their eventual adoption by the general public is probably but a question of time.—Their popularity was destroyed in the beginning by the fact that they were made the medium of a good deal of petty malice. The tailors took this mode of dunning their customers, and it was employed for purposes of intimidation in many a way that narrowly escaped liability to the statute against levying blackmail. Recently, however, a young man who was insulted by an insolent dun, and brought a suit for libel, has recovered heavy damages, the Judge holding in general terms that no communication, which would injure the standing of any person, in whatsoever manner, was eligible for open correspondence. This decision put a stop to the abuses of which the postal card is in its very nature peculiarly susceptible, and there is now some hope that the postal card will gradually recover from the stigma which has been placed upon it.

Leap for Liberty.

A Pennsylvania Deputy Sheriff, who had a prisoner in his charge in a railroad car, the other day, left him for a moment, and as soon as his back was turned the prisoner deliberately jumped, feet foremost through the open window of the car. He alighted in a soft morass, and was not hurt, for he immediately picked himself up and broke for the woods at a gait quite rapid. The officer noticed his sudden exit, and without a moment's hesitation jumped after him. He brought up in the same morass, but his efforts to recapture the fugitive were somewhat impeded by the fact that he pitched headlong into the mud and stuck there. He so struck that his arms were imbedded nearly up to the shoulders in the tenacious mire, and it was therefore an impossibility for him to bring his pistol into requisition. The prisoner took advantage of this singular combination of circumstances in his favor by making a fresh spurt, and soon disappeared in the distance. The train was stopped, and the Deputy Sheriff was fished out of the mud, but he declined to enter upon further pursuit of the prisoner, and continued on his homeward route the muddiest and maddest man lately seen in the State.

A Youth Tortured Most Inhumanely by Two Ruffians.

A horrible outrage was perpetrated in Linn township, Warren county, Iowa, on a boy fourteen years of age, by two men named Hart and McKissick. The boy, who was living at McKissick's, was accused by them of robbing the two men who slept in the room with him. The boy denied his guilt and threats failed to extort a confession. The two brutes whipped him unmercifully, again and again, until Monday night, when the boy was taken to a well, some ten feet deep, with about five feet of water in it, and with a rope round his neck he was lowered repeatedly, head foremost, into the water until nearly drowned. The same night he was taken up stairs, in McKissick's house be McKissick and Hart, and there laid on his face on the floor, his feet bound with a rope passed over the rafters, so as to draw his feet some twenty inches from the floor. His hands were bound behind him and drawn up in the same way to about the same elevation, and his head lashed to a bed post by a cord from his neck. In this condition he was left until ten o'clock Tuesday, when some neighbors discovered and released him from his painful position, more dead than alive. The boy had neither food nor water, save when ducked in the well, from Sunday evening until Tuesday noon. McKissick and Hart, who are both men of property, were arrested yesterday, and held to answer for the assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury, and were also served with notice in a civil suit for $5,000 damages.

The great coal monopoly is with five companies. The total production of anthracite coal is about two millions of tons a month. These five companies, who own all the desirable and productive coal regions, propose to keep down the supply as the means of keeping up the price. The Pennsylvania Company last year, though doing a small business, paid a twenty per cent. cash dividend on $4,000,000 and interest on a funded and floating debt of a million. The Delaware & Hudson Canal Company paid a cash dividend of ten per cent. on $15,000,000 of capital, interest on $13,000,000 of debt, and reported no floating debt. The Delawre, Lackawanna and Western Railroad paid 10 per cent. in cash on $20,000,000 capital, and interest on $9,000,000 of debt. The Reading Railroad paid 10 per cent. cash dividend on $34,000,000 of stock, and interest on $29,000,000 of debt, drawing only about $600,000 from a reserve fund, the profits of previous years. The Lehigh Valley Railroad paid 10 per cent. on $21,000,000 of stock, and interest on $10,000,000 of debt. The New Jersey Central, lessee of the Schuylkill and Susquehanna Road, is also believed to have made its ten per cent. These statistics are from the Tribune. They show the poverty of the coal companies!

Asthma in the Oil Regions.

The Titusville Herald says that asthma is of very rare occurrence in the oil regions, and that the cause of such exemption is found in the fact that the atmosphere there is strongly impregnated with the vapors of petroleum, which acts almost as a specific for the relief of asthma, and at the same time as a preventive of consumption. It adds: "Let any one who is afflicted with asthma, and feels a particular difficult spell of breathing coming on, go in the vicinty of a producing well, where petroleum vapor hovers in the neighborhood, and he will find great relief, and continued presence in such a neighborhood will be the best means of a permanent cure. We look forward to the time when physicians all over the United States will recommend to their asthmatic patients a journey to the oil regions, and we hope some suitable preparation will be made for their entertainment and diversion. The prospect of an infirmary for such subjects has been seriously discussed by many of our citizens, but has not yet taken definite shape."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

To its Natural Vitality and Color.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty.—Thus brashy weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stablished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—It was as dull as a stubbin'-hoe yesterday.

—The Opera House announces new attractions.

—The Second Reformed Church excursion was tolerably well attended.

—How the gentle zephyrs playfully stirred the dust about yesterday, at one time.

—Soda water and ice cream venders ought to be happy about these times.

—Samter's cigar-store, next to the post-office, has opened. It is quite an improvement.

—The Times correspondent calls Rondout a pretty town.

—Many of our citizens are now scampering for the mountains and to the sea shore.

—Douglas, that gas man, was very polite yesterday. He was billing and cooing all day.

—We wonder if our street sprinkling men would hesitate to vote for water works, if that subject was before the people in such a shape.

—The wall at Gross' pond is approaching completion, and we may look for a better street soon.

—Lost, by an Owl, a rosebud, a four-leaved clover, and a sprig of geranium. The finders will please return the same to this office.

—The upper portion of the city is very quiet. Grant is gone, and the Cooper and Schoonmaker case is no longer tickling the ears of the loungers.

—Dr. Kennedy reports this section of the city in a remarkably healthy condition. Try and have it kept so, by keeping cleanly premises and streets.

—A Rondout hoodlum has the stomach of a rhinoceros. We caught one Friday stealing pears as green, hard and luscious as a window blind.

—Near the Higginsville depot Thursday could be seen a clothes line well covered with white garments, and just in the rear of it on the fence was written in large white letters, "This property for sale—Billousness, Dyspepsia, and Costiveness 75 cts."

—The Sunday School of the Rondout M. E. Church goes on its annual excursion to a grove near Coxsackie on Tuesday next, 5th inst. It will be accompanied by Burger's Band, and will have a first-class tow boat and the barge Enterprise. This is always a good excursion.

—We suggest to parties announcing candidates for office that they sign their names to their announcements. We think this western and southwestern plan of announcing candidates is a good one, and our columns are open.

Personal.

Miss Kershaw, a lady printer, called on us yesterday. She is employed as a compositor on the New York Independent, and says the ladies prove very satisfactory type-setters, some of them setting more type than men.

Quarterly Conference.

Rev. J. Y. Bates, Presiding Elder of the Newburgh District, will hold Quarterly Conference at the Rondout M. E. Church to-night. He will also preach on Sunday, both morning and evening.

Arrest of Legg.

Hiram Myer, the bold and efficient officer, yesterday went for Legg, the other of the three villains. Legg had been rather obstreperous and threatening, but when Officer Myer went up to him with handcuffs in one hand and a ...le stick in the other, and extending the handcuffs toward him said, "Put your hands there," Legg complied at once, and was as mild as a lamb. He was taken to the Recorder.

Drowning Case.

August Pinkerton, who resides in the town of Hurley, was out at a moving bee on Wednesday at Nelson Stuart's place. After the ...e he and Peter Davis started to come home across the First Binnewater. The boat commenced to sink after they had come part of the way across, and Davis jumped out and swam to the shore, while Pinkerton remained in the boat until the water came to his neck. He then jumped, but becoming strangled went to the bottom and was drowned. A coroner's inquest was held, when the above facts were elicited and a verdict rendered accordingly. He leaves a wife and three children.

Held to Bail.

In the Recorder's Court on Friday—The People vs. William Legg and John Shannon, charged with resisting a public officer in the performance of his duty, accused were held to bail in the sum of $1,000 each, with two sufficient sureties.

The People vs. William Legg and Francis Magee, charged with an assault and battery on Catharine Diehl, accused held to bail in the sum of $1,000 each, with two sufficient sureties.

The People vs. William Legg, John Shannon and Francis Magee, charged with an assault and battery on Peter Ferman, accused were held to bail in the sum of $500 each, with two sufficient sureties.

Missing Child Discovered.

Some four years since, a little girl was decoyed from a canal boat, at some point on the Delaware and Hudson canal, by a woman who pretended to want to buy some candy for her, while the mother of the child was absent picking berries. The child-stealer has since confessed to another party all she knew about the matter, conscience-troubled, probably on account of the misery she had occasioned the mother and friends of the little girl. The party to whom the confession was made, is a lady now stopping in Sullivan county. She has been fully acquainted with all the circumstances, and is prepared to give such information as will lead the friends of the missing child to recover her. We are informed that she is at present in one of the humane institutions of the City, where she is well cared for. —Ellenville Journal.

Ministers' Vacations.

The vacation business appears to be running into the ground in Troy, as appears in the following from the Troy Times:

One year ago the Times called attention to the evils arising from the absence of all our clergymen from the city at one time, and urged that they would have an understanding among them in the future, so that a few at least of each denomination would remain until others returned. No such action as suggested has been taken, and the consequence is that great difficulty is found in securing a clergyman for any needed service. In West Troy every one of the Protestant clergy is out of town, and in this city the dearth is proportionately great. Those who noticed the death list in last night's Times cannot have failed to notice the large number. The funerals of all these must necessarily devolve upon a few ministers, who, by the very fact of the absence of their brethren, are overburdened, and it is impossible in some instances for people to consult their feelings (we might add, their prejudices) in securing one of their own denomination. If we might state a few facts that have come under our notice within a few days, we are confident that this evil, which results from oversight, would be corrected.

New Steam Canal Boat.

Fire in Greenfield.

The barn and hay house of Jacob B. Frear, in Greenfield, were struck by lightning and destroyed by fire about four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Frear had visited the barn but a few minutes before, and returned to his house. After a sharp flash of lightning he glanced out of the door and discovered his barn in flames. The fire spread so rapidly that it was found impossible to check its progress, or indeed to remove anything from the barn. A few articles were taken out from a smaller building. The barn was an excellent one, 40x40, and contained from twelve to fifteen tons of hay, more than half of Mr. Frear's crop for this year. A wagon, sleighs, harness, numerous farm tools and a quantity of fowls were also destroyed. There was an insurance of $400 on the building, and $250 on the contents, which we are informed will not cover the damage.—Ellenville Journal.

The D. & H. Co. Railroads.

How the D. & H., under its present management, impresses the western mind, is shown by the following, from the American Journal of Education, published at St. Louis:

The Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, one of the oldest and soundest corporations in the country, has until quite recently confined its operations exclusively to the transportation of anthracite coal from the Lackawanna Valley, by way of Honesdale, Pa., to New York. It has lately extended its field very largely, and instead of the single outlet it formerly possessed by its Canal to tide water on the North River, is controlling a system of Railroads that extend from Philadelphia, through Eastern Pennsylvania to Binghamton Syracuse, Oswego, Albany, Saratoga, and by way of Lakes George and Champlain.

There is no line of road under one management that affords so grand a scenery, and so many objects of interest to the tourist as that under the direction of this company. The Lehigh Valley with its endless line of Iron Works and striking mountains and gorges, Mauch Chunk, the beautiful and historical Wyoming Valley, Scranton, that marvel of growth and energy, the anthracite coal fields, the magnificent scenery of the Starucca, Saratoga, and Lake George, these are included in the route controlled by this Company, who are doing all that enterprise, invention and regard for the interest and pleasure of travelers can do, to make it the most pleasing and popular route in the country. They are the first to introduce the great improvement in heating cars by steam from the locomotive.

The character of C. F. Young, Esq., General Superintendent of the entire system of roads managed by this Company, is a guarantee that no pains will be spared to maintain the reputation it has possessed for enterprise ever since in 1827 it imported from England the first locomotive ever landed on American soil.

A New Alarm Clock.

Charley Schoonoven has invented an alarm clock, and it is about the most efficient one we ever saw. It will even awake a night editor from a morning snooze if he is so drowsy he has to pry his eyelids open to find out what the noise is all about. We can recommend it to wake the seven sleepers, because the inventor tried it on us and it succeeded to perfection. It was something about like this. We went to bed the other morning about five o'clock just about as full of drowsiness as nine hours' sleep out of forty-eight would allow. Naturally we expected to slumber on into the middle of next week, and probably would have done so had it not been for this new fangled alarm clock. After we had slept about three hours and were just getting settled down to the business, something brought us to a doze, and half awake, half asleep we heard a most infernal and most unaccountable racket. The house shook, and the noise went on in a regular succession of tidal waves of commotion, but not a glimmer of its nature could we get into our noddle. At one moment we imagined it was a drove of rats running a hurdle race; at another, that we were sleeping next the wheel-house of some big steamboat. Curiosity, not to say the noise of the thing, finally awoke us, but even then we could not imagine what was the racket, which still kept steadily on, with a resounding r-i-p, and then a splash. Finally the cause dawned upon us, as we saw the shingles flying to the ground. At first we imagined they were torn off by an Iowa tornado, but tornadoes don't use hammers, nor have we ever heard of a respectable tornado that chewed tobacco. If you are ever very drowsy and want to be woke very surely, hire some carpenter about a month previous to put a new roof on your dwelling, and he'll come just about the middle of your nicest snooze, and wake you up as sure as fate. It is the best alarm clock in the market—much better than a string tied around your toe with the other end hanging out of the window to be pulled by the watchman.

—The costliest lawyer in the world is Marius Schoonmaker of Kingston, who presented such an appalling bill against Ulster county for legal services rendered, and swears that his services are worth $200 a day. Now let all Lochy Ostrom lawyers take a back seat.—Poughkeepsie Eagle.

COUNTY.

—Several new ice caves have been discovered at Sam's Point.

—The Lackawack tannery is offered for sale.

—Sam's Point is getting a large number of visitors.

—A white chipmunk excites New Paltz, as it ought to do.

—Glenerie Falls is getting popular with summer visitants.

—John H. Newman at Milton is turning out one thousand wheel-barrows a week from his factory. The orders exceed his means.

—A pic-nic will be held in the grove near Rosendale, August 15th, under the auspices of Father Brady, of the Catholic Church.

—A pic-nic party at Union Grove, Bloomingdale, had their anticipations suddenly ended by the non-arrival of the music engaged.

—A gale of wind blew the hair off a young lady at Sam's Point the other day. It cost $4.

—An Ellenville team accomplished the feat of running away with one wagon, and over another one and a carriage, besides knocking over a lamp post.

—Lament's summer resort up the railroad is full. He has had to put up nineteen new beds. There isn't a bed-bug in the whole lot, but big bugs are plenty in his house.

—The ceiling of the Village Hall at New Paltz fell in on Tuesday, according to the Independent. Fortunately the room was clear of occupants at the time.

—The New Paltz Times promises to be "red hot," during the next three months, after speculating officials and general corruption. Such a cause firmly pursued is ever popular to the mass of tax-payers.

—The Independent says that Rev. Dr. Van Santvoord will preach in the Reformed Dutch Church of New Paltz next Sunday, and the Rev. James LeFevre on the following Sunday. The Pastor, Dr. Peltz, will be absent for nine or ten days.

—Mr Marius Schoonmaker is a little too sweeping in his charges against the Board of Supervisors of 1864. We know of one member of that Board who didn't make any money in the substitute business. At least he says he didn't. If he did we would like to know what has become of it. We expect to keep on calling Marius hard names until he will tell who those wicked Supervisors were that divided up the $250,000 which he says was stolen in 1864.—New Paltz Independent.

—Rev. Prof. Flack of Claverack has been made Doctor of Philosophy by the University Convocation now in session at Albany. This is hard on our old friend, but he has our sympathy and good wishes that he may bear this new degree.

—Seven life insurance agents were reported in Sidney Plains for one week. Not an immoderate number for that class. Yet the Delaware Gazette says the place was "sorely afflicted" during their stay—a matter for easy belief.

—The Hudson Register says: The first meeting of creditors in the Woodbridge & Co. bankruptcy case will be held at the office of Hon. C. L. Beale on the 15th of August. The liabilities of the concern amount to over $200,000. The First National Bank of New York has a claim of $44,302.91.

—The big punch bowl of J. V. L. Pruyn, Chancellor of the University, contains the following mixture: Ice, lemons, sugars, six bottles of claret, three of rum and one brandy, and the whole of this mixture was flavored with (river) water. Pretty strong for temperance people.

—The Poughkeepsie Eagle says their filtered reservoir water "is as sweet as a nut."—How long will it be before Kingston is similarly favored? The same paper publishes a sound letter from Mayor Eastman to the Water Committee of the New York Common Council on the subject of supplying that city with an exhaustless supply of pure water from the Hudson above Poughkeepsie. A map of the proposed route prefaces the letter.

—Hall of the Catskill Recorder, in his last published letter from Colorado, speaks far differently of that region than at the time of his first impressions. He refers enthusiastically to its exhilarating climate, the fairly tonic effects of hot weather out there, and to his sound nine and ten hours sleep. While the removal of Hall from the east would be of serious moment to his paper, we feel that for his impaired health and general temperament he has found the section in which to pass his days.

—The funeral services over the remains of the wife of Rev. Mr. Prime, pastor of the Union Church, Newburgh, took place from that Church Wednesday. The edifice was filled to overflowing by sympathizing friends. Rev. Dr. E. D. G. Prime of New York city conducted the funeral services. Among the clergymen in attendance were: Revs. W. K. Hall, J. Scale, Andrew Longacre, J. J. Walsh, J. Q. Adams, J. R. Thompson, Samuel Carlisle, G. H. Corey, J. G. D. Finley, R. H. Wallace, Octavius Applegate.

Wm. Renne & Sons, of Pittsfield, Mass., make a specialty of Renne's Pain-Killing Magic Oil, and the demand for it is steadily increasing year after year, and its use by the families of our country is becoming very common for curing all kinds of pain, and can be used externally and internally safely with success. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—It was as dull as a stubbin'-hoe yesterday.

—The Opera House announces new attractions.

—The Second Reformed Church excursion was tolerably well attended.

—How the gentle zephyrs playfully stirred the dust about yesterday, at one time.

—Soda water and ice cream venders ought to be happy about these times.

—Samter's cigar-store, next to the post-office, has opened. It is quite an improvement.

—The Times correspondent calls Rondout a pretty town.

—Many of our citizens are now scampering for the mountains and to the sea shore.

—Douglas, that gas man, was very polite yesterday. He was billing and cooing all day.

—We wonder if our street sprinkling men would hesitate to vote for water works, if that subject was before the people in such a shape.

—The wall at Gross' pond is approaching completion, and we may look for a better street soon.

—Lost, by an Owl, a rosebud, a four-leaved clover, and a sprig of geranium. The finders will please return the same to this office.

—The upper portion of the city is very quiet. Grant is gone, and the Cooper and Schoonmaker case is no longer tickling the ears of the loungers.

—Dr. Kennedy reports this section of the city in a remarkably healthy condition. Try and have it kept so, by keeping cleanly premises and streets.

—A Rondout hoodlum has the stomach of a rhinoceros. We caught one Friday stealing pears as green, hard and luscious as a window blind.

—Near the Higginsville depot Thursday could be seen a clothes line well covered with white garments, and just in the rear of it on the fence was written in large white letters, "This property for sale—Billousness, Dyspepsia, and Costiveness 75 cts."

—The Sunday School of the Rondout M. E. Church goes on its annual excursion to a grove near Coxsackie on Tuesday next, 5th inst. It will be accompanied by Burger's Band, and will have a first-class tow boat and the barge Enterprise. This is always a good excursion.

—We suggest to parties announcing candidates for office that they sign their names to their announcements. We think this western and southwestern plan of announcing candidates is a good one, and our columns are open.

Personal.

Miss Kershaw, a lady printer, called on us yesterday. She is employed as a compositor on the New York Independent, and says the ladies prove very satisfactory type-setters, some of them setting more type than men.

Quarterly Conference.

Rev. J. Y. Bates, Presiding Elder of the Newburgh District, will hold Quarterly Conference at the Rondout M. E. Church to-night. He will also preach on Sunday, both morning and evening.

Arrest of Legg.

Hiram Myer, the bold and efficient officer, yesterday went for Legg, the other of the three ruffians. Legg had been rather obstreperous and threatening, but when Officer Myer went up to him with handcufls in one hand and a little stick in the other, and extending the handcuffs toward him said, "Put your hands in there," Legg complied at once, and was as mild as a lamb. He was taken to the Recorder.

Drowning Case.

August Pinkerton, who resides in the town of Hurley, was out at a moving bee on Wednesday at Nelson Stuart's place. After the bee he and Peter Davis started to come home across the First Binnewater. The boat commenced to sink after they had come part of the way across, and Davis jumped out and swam to the shore, while Pinkerton remained in the boat until the water came to his neck. He then jumped, but becoming strangled went to the bottom and was drowned. A coroner's inquest was held, when the above facts were elicited and a verdict rendered accordingly. He leaves a wife and three children.

Held to Bail.

In the Recorder's Court on Friday—The People vs. William Legg and John Shannon, charged with resisting a public officer in the performance of his duty, accused were held to bail in the sum of $1,000 each, with two sufficient sureties.

The People vs. William Legg and Francis Magee, charged with an assault and battery on Catharine Diehl, accused held to bail in the sum of $1,000 each, with two sufficient sureties.

The People vs. William Legg, John Shannon and Francis Magee, charged with an assault and battery on Peter Ferman, accused were held to bail in the sum of $500 each, with two sufficient sureties.

Missing Child Discovered.

Some four years since, a little girl was decoyed from a canal boat, at some point on the Delaware and Hudson canal, by a woman who pretended to want to buy some candy for her, while the mother of the child was absent picking berries. The child-stealer has since confessed to another party all she knew about the matter, conscience-troubled, probably on account of the misery she had occasioned the mother and friends of the little girl. The party to whom the confession was made, is a lady now stopping in Sullivan county. She has been fully acquainted with all the circumstances, and is prepared to give such information as will lead the friends of the missing child to recover her. We are informed that she is at present in one of the humane institutions of the City, where she is well cared for. —Ellenville Journal.

Ministers' Vacations.

The vacation business appears to be running in the ground in Troy, as appears in the following from the Troy Times:

One year ago the Times called attention to the evils arising from the absence of all our clergymen from the city at one time, and hoped that they would have an understanding among them in the future, so that a few at least of each denomination would remain until others returned. No such action as suggested has been taken, and the consequence is that great difficulty is found in securing a clergyman for any needed service. In West Troy every one of the Protestant clergy is out of town, and in this city the dearth is proportionately great. Those who noticed the death list in last night's Times cannot have failed to mark the large number. The funerals of all these must necessarily devolve upon a few ministers, who, by the very fact of the absence of their brethren, are overburdened, and it is impossible in some instances for people to consult their feelings (we might add, their prejudices) in securing one of their own denomination. If we might state a few facts that have come under our notice within a few days, we are confident that this evil, which results from oversight, would be corrected.

New Steam Canal Boat.

Agricultural Fairs.

The following town and county fairs have been designated already, and we note those that may be of local interest to our readers:

New York State Fair, at Albany, Sept. 24—Oct. 1.
Columbia Co., at Hudson, Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2.
Delaware Co., at Delhi, Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2.
Dutchess Co., at Washington Hollow, Sept. 16, 17, 18.
Greene Co., at Cairo, Sept. 24, 25.
Newburgh Bay Horticultural, Newburgh, Sept. 23, 24, 25.
Rhinebeck, Sept. 9, 10, 11.
Schoharie Co., Schoharie, Oct. 6, 7, 8.
Ulster County, Sept. 24, 25, 26.

Fire in Greenfield.

The barn and hay house of Jacob B. Frear, in Greenfield, were struck by lightning and destroyed by fire about four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Frear had visited the barn but a few minutes before, and returned to his house. After a sharp flash of lightning he glanced out of the door and discovered his barn in flames. The fire spread so rapidly that it was found impossible to check its progress, or indeed to remove anything from the barn. A few articles were taken out from a smaller building. The barn was an excellent one, 40x40, and contained from twelve to fifteen tons of hay, more than half of Mr. Frear's crop for this year. A wagon, sleighs, harness, numerous farm tools and a quantity of fowls were also destroyed. There was an insurance of $400 on the building, and $250 on the contents, which we are informed will not cover the damage.—Ellenville Journal.

Tows.

The following were yesterday's tows:

Steamer William Cook—Ice barges Edmonds, Winfield, R. Parker, barge John Darrow for New York.

Propeller Farrington—Boat Frank, eleven Penn. Co. boats for Newburgh.

Propeller Columbia—Barges Katie Gokey, G. F. Patten, boats Alex Toms, P. P. St. John, Amelia, J. Tracy, four Penn. boats for Hudson.

Up tows from New York:

Steamers Valentine and Marshall—Boats Geo. W. Lee, New Era to Hudson; E. A. Gilbert, C. N. Silliman; Barge A. B. Kellogg; Ice Barges John L. Patchin, Ballantin; D. & H. boats.

The D. & H. Co. Railroads.

How the D. & H., under its present management, impresses the western mind, is shown by the following, from the American Journal of Education, published at St. Louis:

The Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, one of the oldest and soundest corporations in the country, has until quite recently confined its operations exclusively to the transportation of anthracite coal from the Lackawanna Valley, by way of Honesdale, Pa., to New York. It has lately extended its field very largely, and instead of the single outlet it formerly possessed by its Canal to tide water on the North River, is controlling a system of Railroads that extend from Philadelphia, through Eastern Pennsylvania to Binghamton Syracuse, Oswego, Albany, Saratoga, and by way of Lakes George and Champlain.

There is no line of road under one management that affords so grand a scenery, and so many objects of interest to the tourist as that under the direction of this company. The Lehigh Valley with its endless line of Iron Works and striking mountains and gorges, Mauch Chunk, the beautiful and historical Wyoming Valley, Scranton, that marvel of growth and energy, the anthracite coal fields, the magnificent scenery of the Starucca, Saratoga, and Lake George, these are included in the route controlled by this Company, who are doing all that enterprise, invention and regard for the interest and pleasure of travelers can do, to make it the most pleasing and popular route in the country. They are the first to introduce the great improvement in heating cars by steam from the locomotive.

The character of C. F. Young, Esq., General Superintendent of the entire system of roads managed by this Company, is a guarantee that no pains will be spared to maintain the reputation it has possessed for enterprise ever since in 1827 it imported from England the first locomotive ever landed on American soil.

A New Alarm Clock.

Charley Schoonoven has invented an alarm clock, and it is about the most efficient one we ever saw. It will even awake a night editor from a morning snooze if he is so drowsy he has to pry his eyelids open to find out what the noise is all about. We can recommend it to wake the seven sleepers, because the inventor tried it on us and it succeeded to perfection. It was something about like this. We went to bed the other morning about five o'clock just about as full of drowsiness as nine hours' sleep out of forty-eight would allow. Naturally we expected to slumber on into the middle of next week, and probably would have done so had it not been for this new fangled alarm clock. After we had slept about three hours and were just getting settled down to the business, something brought us to a doze, and half awake, half asleep we heard a most infernal and most unaccountable racket. The house shook, and the noise went on in a regular succession of tidal waves of commotion, but not a glimmer of its nature could we get into our noddle. At one moment we imagined it was a drove of rats running a hurdle race; at another, that we were sleeping next the wheel-house of some big steamboat. Curiosity, not to say the noise of the thing, finally awoke us, but even then we could not imagine what was the racket, which still kept steadily on, with a resounding r-i-p, and then a splash. Finally the cause dawned upon us, as we saw the shingles flying to the ground. At first we imagined they were torn off by an Iowa tornado, but tornadoes don't use hammers, nor have we ever heard of a respectable tornado that chewed tobacco. If you are ever very drowsy and want to be woke very surely, hire some carpenter about a month previous to put a new roof on your dwelling, and he'll come just about the middle of your nicest snooze, and wake you up as sure as fate. It is the best alarm clock in the market—much better than a string tied around your toe with the other end hanging out of the window to be pulled by the watchman.

—The costliest lawyer in the world is Marius Schoonmaker of Kingston, who presented such an appalling bill against Ulster county for legal services rendered, and swears that his services are worth $200 a day. Now let all Lochy Ostrom lawyers take a back seat.—Poughkeepsie Eagle.

—Several new ice caves have been discovered at Sam's Point.

—The Lackawack tannery is offered for sale.

—Sam's Point is getting a large number of visitors.

—A white chipmunk excites New Paltz, as it ought to do.

—Mr. Crisman, of the Webb House, Ellenville, is negotiating for the sale of his hotel.

—Glenerie Falls is getting popular with summer visitants.

—John H. Newman at Milton is turning out one thousand wheel-barrows a week from his factory. The orders exceed his means.

—A pic-nic will be held in the grove near Rosendale, August 15th, under the auspices of Father Brady, of the Catholic Church.

—A pic-nic party at Union Grove, Bloomingdale, had their anticipations suddenly ended by the non-arrival of the music engaged.

—A gale of wind blew the hair off a young lady at Sam's Point the other day. It cost $4.

—An Ellenville team accomplished the feat of running away with one wagon, and over another one and a carriage, besides knocking over a lamp post.

—Lament's summer resort up the railroad is full. He has had to put up nineteen new beds. There isn't a bed-bug in the whole lot, but big bugs are plenty in his house.

—The ceiling of the Village Hall at New Paltz fell in on Tuesday, according to the Independent. Fortunately the room was clear of occupants at the time.

—The New Paltz Times promises to be "red hot," during the next three months, after speculating officials and general corruption. Such a cause firmly pursued is ever popular to the mass of tax-payers.

—The Independent says that Rev. Dr. Van Santvoord will preach in the Reformed Dutch Church of New Paltz next Sunday, and the Rev. James LeFevre on the following Sunday. The Pastor, Dr. Peltz, will be absent for nine or ten days.

—Mr Marius Schoonmaker is a little too sweeping in his charges against the Board of Supervisors of 1864. We know of one member of that Board who didn't make any money in the substitute business. At least he says he didn't. If he did we would like to know what has become of it. We expect to keep on calling Marius hard names until he will tell who those wicked Supervisors were that divided up the $250,000 which he says was stolen in 1864.—New Paltz Independent.

VICINITY.

—The potato bug has arrived at Walden.

—Potatoes are selling in Troy at $3.25 per barrel.

—Civil damage cases in Mohawk and Little Falls.

—A mad dog in Albany the other night. A man was bitten by him before he was killed.

—One boy killed and two men injured by a stroke of lightning at Watervliet.

—The new bank project at Chatham is in statu quo.

—Catskill will try some more racing in October, with $15,000 in purses.

—A threatened breeze in the Newburgh Fire Department. What next from that sleepy city?

—The Gazette reports a century plant in full bloom at Rhinebeck, i. e. has photographic views of the one at Barrytown.

—The time of holding the Columbia County Fair has been changed to September 16th, 17th and 18th.

—The wife of an Albany German has eloped with a soldier of an adjacent recruiting rendezvous in that city.

—We notice in a Chatham paper a marriage notice in which the minister's name is Jump. How appropriate!

—The papers are filled with letters from people in Europe. They see everything in the guide-book.

—Hotel men will sometimes come to grief. Charles Miller, formerly of the Worth House, Hudson, has turned up at Foo Chow, China.

—The fire in the new blast furnace at Chatham was started on Monday. It took 700 bushels of charcoal to fill the stack.

—Windham complains of being libeled by the Catskill boat-runners. Tell people to come by way of Kingston then.

—The Poughkeepsie morning papers night force amuse themselves by chasing visiting owls and bats about the composing rooms and cases.

—According to the Andes Recorder, four stages a day are insufficient to carry summer boarders between Moresville Station and Prattsville.

—Hops promise a fair yield throughout the valley of the Susquehanna. The growth is not heavy, but is free thus far from the ravages of the much dreaded "hop lice."

—Erastus Corning, the well-known millionaire of Albany, now traveling in Europe, is going to import a large number of thoroughbred horses and cattle.

—A Windham man has just had produced for him a wonderful egg. It weighed five ounces, and contained a natural yolk and white of an egg, also another one of full size with shell on.

—The railroads managed by the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. are run on the English plan. The Engineer department takes care of the tracks. The Superintendent's department manages transportation alone.

—Rev. Prof. Flack of Claverack has been made Doctor of Philosophy by the University Convocation now in session at Albany. This is hard on our old friend, but he has our sympathy and good wishes that he may bear this new degree.

—Seven life insurance agents were reported in Sidney Plains for one week. Not an immoderate number for that class. Yet the Delaware Gazette says the place was "sorely afflicted" during their stay—a matter for easy belief.

—The Hudson Register says: The first meeting of creditors in the Woodbridge & Co. bankruptcy case will be held at the office of Hon. C. L. Beale on the 15th of August. The liabilities of the concern amount to over $200,000. The First National Bank of New York has a claim of $44,302.91.

—The big punch bowl of J. V. L. Pruyn, Chancellor of the University, contains the following mixture: Ice, lemons, sugars, six bottles of claret, three of rum and one brandy, and the whole of this mixture was flavored with (river) water. Pretty strong for temperance people.

—The Poughkeepsie Eagle says their filtered reservoir water "is as sweet as a nut."—How long will it be before Kingston is similarly favored? The same paper publishes a sound letter from Mayor Eastman to the Water Committee of the New York Common Council on the subject of supplying that city with an exhaustless supply of pure water from the Hudson above Poughkeepsie. A map of the proposed route prefaces the letter.

—Hall of the Catskill Recorder, in his last published letter from Colorado, speaks far differently of that region than at the time of his first impressions. He refers enthusiastically to its exhilarating climate, the fairly tonic effects of hot weather out there, and to his sound nine and ten hours sleep. While the removal of Hall from the east would be of serious moment to his paper, we feel that for his impaired health and general temperament he has found the section in which to pass his days.

—The funeral services over the remains of the wife of Rev. Mr. Prime, pastor of the Union Church, Newburgh, took place from that Church Wednesday. The edifice was filled to overflowing by sympathizing friends. Rev. Dr. E. D. G. Prime of New York city conducted the funeral services. Among the clergymen in attendance were: Revs. W. K. Hall, J. Scale, Andrew Longacre, J. J. Walsh, J. Q. Adams, J. R. Thompson, Samuel Carlisle, G. H. Corey, J. G. D. Finley, R. H. Wallace, Octavius Applegate.

REV. W. H. KINGSBURY,
Kingston, N. Y.

The Daily Freeman.

A Thunder-Storm on the Plains.

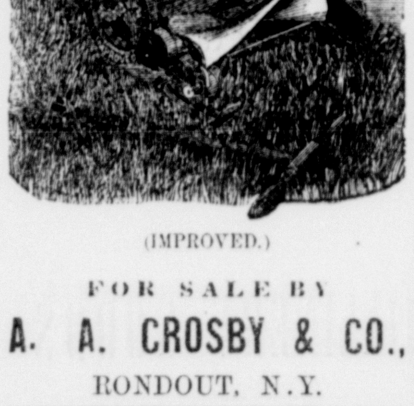

A correspondent of the Tribune who is with Gen. Stanley's Yellowstone expedition gives his impressions of the meteorological phenomena of that region: Two of the heaviest thunder-storms I have ever witnessed I have seen in Dakota. The rainfall was very great, the thunder and lightning fearful, and the wind a perfect tornado. If all the artillery in the ordinance department could be parked, loaded, and fired together, the simultaneous roar would compare with that second night's thunder only as a pop-gun compares with a Rodman. I doubt if any possible gunpowder chorus could liberate a sound worthy of respect as a faint echo to a first-class Dakota thunder-peal. Any man who could sleep through these successive crashes of ear-bursting noise, must be incurably deaf. Flashes of lightning blinding in intensity and marvelous in rapidity rent the heavens with their zig-zag knives. The wind became a hurricane flying across the plain. The rain poured in torrents. The thermometer dropped from a shadeless heat of about 120° to 47. The thunder was bearable. The lightning only penetrated the swollen clouds and decended to no lower thrusts. Both could be accepted with resignation. Even the rain could be endured had it fallen with more rectitude of purpose. But the wind was the arch disturber. It made cork-screws of the rainfalls and twisted them under the tent flaps, soaking our blankets, and giving the blanketed a wet-sheet pack. This was a hard test for patience and piety. A good many resolutions were broken. Interjections spontaneously came to the surface and were carried off on the swift air. The storm was anything but moral in its influence When at last the boisterous wind took many of the tents in its great strong arms and turned them over on their occupants, the cup was full. Only the angel who takes down naughty words, and who, it seems to me, might be better employed, could give an accurate report of the short and pointed speeches which this active wind excited.

Alexander T. Stewart.

Though Alexander. T. Stewart has gone abroad ostensibly on business, the real purpose of his voyage is said to be his health, which continues very precarious. He has by no means recovered from his late attack, and there is doubt if he ever will. He has been so vigorous in the past that he does not quite comprehend the change in his system He was averse to going to Europe this summer, and would not have gone if his physicians had not told him the journey was absolutely essential to his health. Before sailing, he put all his worldly affairs into shape, exactly as if he had no idea of returning. His wife (she does not usually go with him), his legal adviser, ex-Judge Hilton, and his private physician, accompanied the millionaire. Many persons here think the merchant will not live to return to these shores. He is now 70; he has physical troubles which generally prove fatal to men much younger, and he has overworked for the last half century. His prospects certainly are not brilliant for many more years.—Persons of his temperament and constitution, when they begin to break, generally go fast, and there is no reason to believe Stewart will prove an exception.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

BLOOD PURIFIER

JURUBEBA

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

DR. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED AND ENFEEBLED Organs.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL

RAILWAY COMPANY'S

First Mortgage 7 Per Cent

SINKING FUND

GOLD BONDS,

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

An East and West Air Line of 152 Miles Indianapolis, Ind., to Decatur, Ill.

Passing through the richest agricultural and mineral counties of Indiana and Illinois, and being the only East and West Line occupying a belt thirty miles wide. It crosses the best part of the newly discovered of Indiana, which has given a greater impetus to the manufacture of iron than any previous discovery in America. The company owns 200,000 acres of the best block coal lands, besides 30,000 acres of farming lands.

$1,000,000 in Cash has been already expended on this road, of which 30 miles in Illinois are finished and in operation. Fifty-five miles more, completing the Western Division, Decatur to the Coal Fields, will be completed this fall and the whole road in 1873.

Upward of Two Millions of Dollars more are pledged by the enterprise, partly by counties, towns, and individuals along the line, but chiefly by wealthy capitalists, among whom are W. H. Guion (of Williams & Guion), Sidney Dillon, Jay Cooke & Co., Clark, Dodge & Co., J. & W. Seligman, Vibbard, Foote & Co., and Paul S. Forbes of New York, Benj. E. Bates of Boston, Henry Lewis of Philadelphia and Geo. M. Pullman of Chicago.

The road connects at both termini with the most important Through Railway Lines of the West, and being by many miles shorter than any other line, will be an indispensable link in through traffic, while its local business alone will insure an ample return.

Bonds $1,000 each, payable to Union Trust Company, Trustee, or bearer, July 1, 1901, in gold coin. Coupons, also in gold, payable January 1 and July 1 in New York, or at Union Bank of London, at fixed exchange £7 sterling.

The Daily Freeman.

A Thunder-Storm on the Plains.

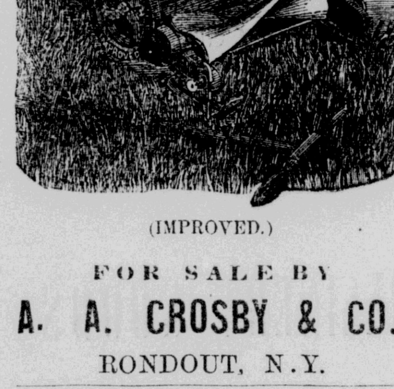

A correspondent of the Tribune who is with Gen. Stanley's Yellowstone expedition gives his impressions of the meteorological phenomena of that region: Two of the heaviest thunder-storms I have ever witnessed I have seen in Dakota. The rainfall was very great, the thunder and lightning fearful, and the wind a perfect tornado. If all the artillery in the ordinance department could be parked, loaded, and fired together, the simultaneous roar would compare with that second night's thunder only as a pop-gun compares with a Rodman. I doubt if any possible gunpowder chorus could liberate a sound worthy of respect as a faint echo to a first-class Dakota thunder-peal. Any man who could sleep through these successive crashes of ear-bursting noise, must be incurably deaf. Flashes of lightning blinding in intensity and marvelous in rapidity rent the heavens with their zig-zag knives. The wind became a hurricane flying across the plain. The rain poured in torrents. The thermometer dropped from a shadeless heat of about 120° to 47. The thunder was bearable. The lightning only penetrated the swollen clouds and decended to no lower thrusts. Both could be accepted with resignation. Even the rain could be endured had it fallen with more rectitude of purpose. But the wind was the arch disturber. It made cork-screws of the rainfalls and twisted them under the tent flaps, soaking our blankets, and giving the blanketed a wet-sheet pack. This was a hard test for patience and piety. A good many resolutions were broken. Interjections spontaneously came to the surface and were carried off on the swift air. The storm was anything but moral in its influence When at last the boisterous wind took many of the tents in its great strong arms and turned them over on their occupants, the cup was full. Only the angel who takes down naughty words, and who, it seems to me, might be better employed, could give an accurate report of the short and pointed speeches which this active wind excited.

Alexander T. Stewart.

Though Alexander. T. Stewart has gone abroad ostensibly on business, the real purpose of his voyage is said to be his health, which continues very precarious. He has by no means recovered from his late attack, and there is doubt if he ever will. He has been so vigorous in the past that he does not quite comprehend the change in his system He was averse to going to Europe this summer, and would not have gone if his physicians had not told him the journey was absolutely essential to his health. Before sailing, he put all his worldly affairs into shape, exactly as if he had no idea of returning. His wife (she does not usually go with him), his legal adviser, ex-Judge Hilton, and his private physician, accompanied the millionaire. Many persons here think the merchant will not live to return to these shores. He is now 70; he has physical troubles which generally prove fatal to men much younger, and he has overworked for the last half century. His prospects certainly are not brilliant for many more years.—Persons of his temperament and constitution, when they begin to break, generally go fast, and there is no reason to believe Stewart will prove an exception.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN BLOOD PURIFIER JURUBEBA

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

DR. WELLS' EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED AND ENFEEBLED Organs.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

THE INDIANA AND ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY'S First Mortgage 7 Per Cent SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS, FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

An East and West Air Line of 152 Miles Indianapolis, Ind., to Decatur, Ill.

Passing through the richest agricultural and mineral counties of Indiana and Illinois, and being the only East and West Line occupying a belt thirty miles wide. It crosses the best part of the newly discovered BLOCK COAL FIELD of Indiana, which has given a greater impetus to the manufacture of iron than any previous discovery in America. The company owns 200,000 acres of the best block coal lands, besides 30,000 acres of farming lands.

$1,000,000 in Cash has been already expended on this road, of which 30 miles in Illinois are finished and in operation. Fifty-five miles more, completing the Western Division, Decatur to the Coal Fields, will be completed this fall and the whole road in 1873.

Upward of Two Millions of Dollars more are pledged by the enterprise, partly by counties, towns, and individuals along the line, but chiefly by wealthy capitalists, among whom are W. H. Guion (of Williams & Guion), Sidney Dillon, Jay Cooke & Co., Clark, Dodge & Co., J. & W. Seligman, Vibbard, Foote & Co., and Paul S. Forbes of New York, Benj. E. Bates of Boston, Henry Lewis of Philadelphia and Geo. M. Pullman of Chicago.

The road connects at both termini with the most important Through Railway Lines of the West, and being by many miles shorter than any other line, will be an indispensable link in through traffic, while its local business alone will insure an ample return.

Bonds $1,000 each, payable to Union Trust Company, Trustee, or bearer, July 1, 1901, in gold coin. Coupons, also in gold, payable January 1 and July 1 in New York, or at Union Bank of London, at fixed exchange £7 sterling.
